VON PAPEN TO BE SUPERSEDED ALTHOUGH EXONERATED OF PLOTTING FALSE ALARM IN CAPITAL

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 3, 9.35 a.m.)
Berlin, July 3.
An atmosphere of tension and excitement persists in Berlin, although the city is outwardly quiet and the primary stage of the "second revolution" is completed.

Close secrecy is being maintained about the activities of forces loyal to Hitler in their round-up of suspects, but it is officially admitted that twenty executions had taken place up to midnight. It is also admitted that additional executions are probable.

Herr Hitler has been in earnest conference with the leading figures in the government preliminary to a meeting of the Cabinet this afternoon, when it is expected a list of those executed throughout Germany up to the conclusion of the Cabinet meeting will be announced, together with the numbers of those under arrest awaiting court-martial.

BARRICADE ROUND WILHELMSTRASSE AREA
Captain von Papen, the vice-Chancellor, is now virtually a free man, although it is believed that he will lose his present position in the Government.

The Reichswehr guards that had been placed in front of von Papen's house, in a private street near the Tiergarten, was withdrawn last night. He now has complete freedom of movement.

HITLER GOES VISITING.
Berlin, July 2.
Excitement again surged up to fever pitch in the capital to-night when the entire Wilhelmstrasse area was suddenly barricaded.

A huge wondering crowd gathered beyond the police cordon, but it transpired that these unusual precautions were taken while Herr Hitler was paying a visit to the King of Siam at the Hotel Adlon.

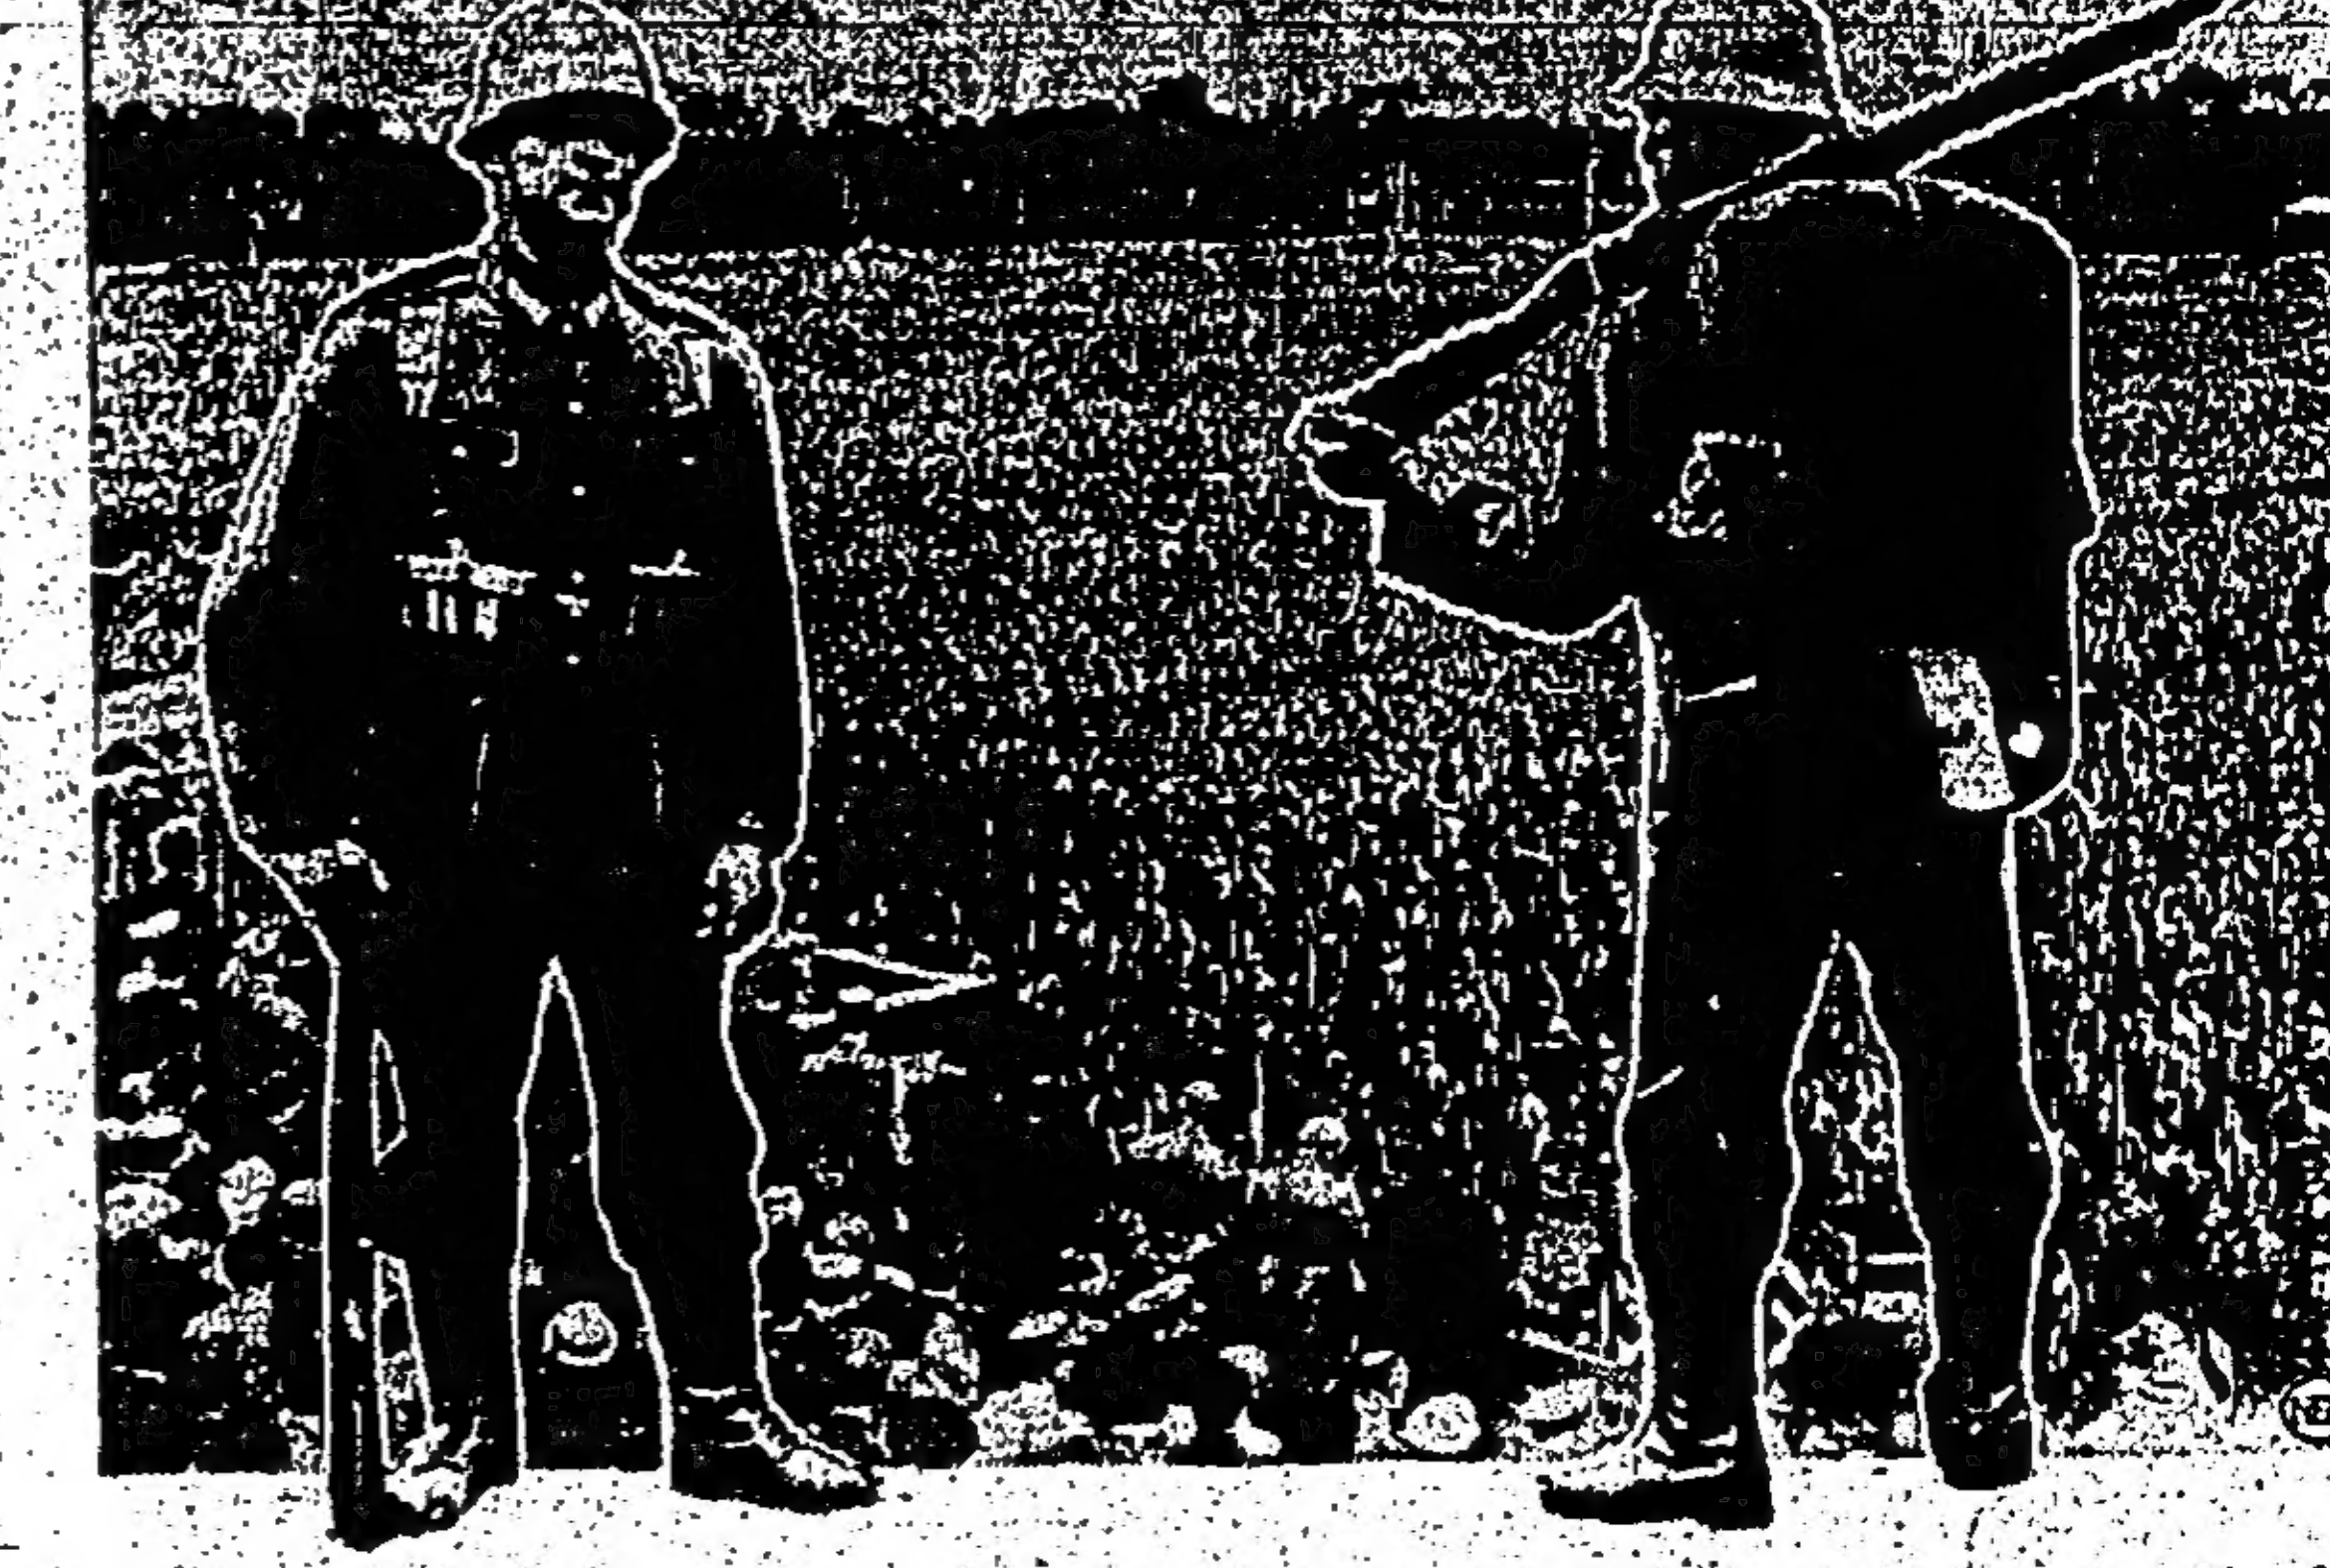

MOMENTOUS GATHERING.
Berlin, July 2.
The Cabinet meeting arranged for to-morrow will undoubtedly be the most momentous since the Nazi regime began.

The Cabinet will deliberate upon, among other things, the future of Captain von Papen, and the fate of the Storm Troop leaders.

VON PAPEN'S FUTURE.
Later
Capt von Papen is no longer detained. He was seen animatedly chatting in the street with General Goering, after an hour's talk in which, it is believed, he exonerated himself.

It is now reported that he will remain in the Cabinet, but in another capacity.—Reuter.

Vatican Refutes Suicide Story
(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 3, 9.35 a.m.)
Rome, July 2.
Relations between Herr Hitler and the Vatican are again sharply strained as the result of the death during the blood-letting of the week-end, of Herr Klausener.

Disarmament of the Storm Troops and the delegation of the task of maintaining peace and order in the Reich to the Reichswehr is consistently predicted as a result of the developments of the week-end. An enormous parade of the Storm Troops, with men of the Reichswehr superimposed is illustrated above.

SHANGHAI HEAT WAVE VICTIM
DEATH OF MR. A. MCCLURE
HEAD OF FIRM OF AUDITORS
Shanghai, July 3.
The death occurred early this morning from heat stroke of Mr. Alexander McClure, senior partner in the firm of Seth, Mancell and McClure, the well-known Shanghai accountants.

The victim, who hailed from Glasgow, had been a resident of Shanghai since 1918.

He suffered from an attack of heat stroke last year, and it may be recalled that a few weeks ago he was 'held up' in his office by armed robbers, who stole $12,000 and got clear away.

Mr. McClure was only 46 years of age and he leaves a widow and a young son, both of whom are in Shanghai.—Reuter.

MISSING SOLDIERS TURN UP

Wilfred George Starnmore and George Walker, two privates of the South Wales Borderers, who were reported to the police as missing from barracks since Friday, reported at Kowloon City Police Station to-day at about 8.40 a.m.

They stated that they had been hiking in the hills and had lost their way.

The newspapers state that the P. and O. company have sold 1,500,000 shares of their holdings of pound sterling ordinary shares in William Cory and Sons, the coal exporters.

It is understood that the object of the sale is to provide funds for further shipbuilding.—Reuter.

Familiar Chimes To Be Resumed
London, July 2.
In connection with the work of restoration of the Houses of Parliament, the Big Ben Tower has been partially hidden under scaffolding for past few months and the clock itself, which is one of most accurate in the world, has been undergoing overhaul.

The familiar chimes will be resumed to-morrow and the scaffolding will be removed during the present week.—British Wireless.

MACDONALD AND ROOSEVELT
LIKELY TO MEET AND TALK
London, July 3.
Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, says the "Daily Herald," is thinking of meeting President Roosevelt and exchanging views informally on world problems.

It was indicated last night that the Premier, during his holiday in America, hopes to be able to arrange for a meeting.

No plans have been made, but it is felt that a friendly talk is needed to remove the bad impression created in the United States by the British Admiralty memorandum. It is stated that the Japanese Naval Officers' Memorandum suggests that the Japanese attitude is hardening.

The Prime Minister, who to-day arrived at Loughborough, where he will spend the first part of his long holiday, will sail for Canada aboard the C.P.R. liner, Duchess of Richmond, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ishbel, leaving Liverpool on July 20.—Reuter and British Wireless.

Victim of a motor accident, Lai Sze entered the Kowloon Hospital yesterday. He suffered injuries of a minor nature, caused through being knocked down in Tai Po Road by a car.

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia is due here from Shanghai at 3 p.m. to-morrow.

CHINA'S LATEST TARIFFS
MOST DUTIES SHOW AN INCREASE
Shanghai, July 3.
The new schedules for the Chinese Customs import tariff have been issued. They are effective as from July 1.

The tariff generally shows a reduction in the import duties upon nearly all ranges and classes of cotton goods, but the revision in most of the other categories is in an upward direction.

The tax on gasoline and kerosene bears one of the heaviest fresh imposts, the increase being about twenty-five per cent.

Jams and jellies go from thirty per cent. to thirty-five per cent, meat extracts from twenty-five to thirty per cent, coffee, chocolate and tea, bacon and canned goods generally move up from thirty per cent. to thirty-five per cent. ad valorem.

Wireless apparatus of all kinds is also subject to a boost, the ad valorem duty being increased from twelve and a half per cent. to fifteen.

LUXURY GOODS.
Electric cookers, fans, etc. are increased from 20 to 25 per cent. ad valorem, toys and games from thirty to 35 per cent, jewellery and ornaments from 25 to 30 per cent, including pearls, both real and artificial.

Perfumery and cosmetics go up by five per cent.

These are the more popular items in a list enumerating no fewer than 672 categories of goods.—Reuter.

SUN FO'S VISIT TO HONOLULU
To Coincide With That of Pres. Roosevelt
Shanghai, July 2.
Mr. Sun Fo, President of the Legislative Yuan, is sailing for Honolulu on board the Empress of Canada, accompanied by his wife and Mr. Yu Ming, Director of the Shanghai office of the Waikhaopu.

AMERICAN SILVER AIMS
SIXTY-FIVE CENTS AN OUNCE?
NATIONALISING BANKING?
Washington, July 2.
A steady rise in silver prices is predicted by close observers of the Administration's policies.

The Administration has in mind a programme of taxation on finance and prices. This taxation is being studied to provide a plan to yield larger taxes, to support the continued heavy roller expenditures.

Banking and credit questions also are being considered, with the idea of a thorough reconstruction of the banking system. The control of credit is not likely to be left entirely in private hands.

No change in price objectives is contemplated by the Administration, which is still anticipating a return to the 100-cent mark.

The Treasury is making no definite commitments on silver purchases, but is carrying out the intent of the silver legislation and is likely to continue an active buyer. Expectation is that the Treasury will put gradually silver up to about 65 cents an ounce.—Sloan, Culbertson and Fritz.

DEATH OF EX-MINISTER TO JAPAN
London, July 3.
The death has occurred at the age of 79 years, of the Right Hon. Sir Conyngham Greene, K.C.B., G.O.M.G., formerly of the diplomatic service, who was Ambassador to Japan from 1912 to 1919.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

WHAT SUMMER BRIDES WEAR "GOING AWAY"

Silk Dress With Linen Coat Ideal Honeymoon Suit

By Marian Young

NEW YORK.—Lucky is the bride who chooses her trousseau from 1934's crop of early summer clothes. This is a year when going-away clothes and honeymoon apparel are as fascinating as a bride's orange blossoms.

Next in importance to the wedding gown itself is the ensemble the bride wears starting on her honeymoon. It may be a strict tulleur with interesting pique touches at throat and wrists—perfect for the bride who is going on a sea voyage; a dressmaker suit of light-weight woollen or heavy silk crepe, depending on the climate to be encountered; a redingote which is always good at seashore or mountain resort, and which, in addition, is grand for travelling; some kind of an ensemble that includes dress and matching topeat that can be worn over other frocks in the wardrobe.

The outfit shown at left is an ideal "going-away" suit. It consists of a natural coloured full-length coat in a rather knobby linen that is wrinkle-proof and a tie silk dress with short sleeves and a flattering high neckline.

The lapels and turned-down collar on the double-breasted coat are lined with blue and white tie silk to match the dress that fastens on the left side with silver hooks. The buttons on the coat are of self-material.

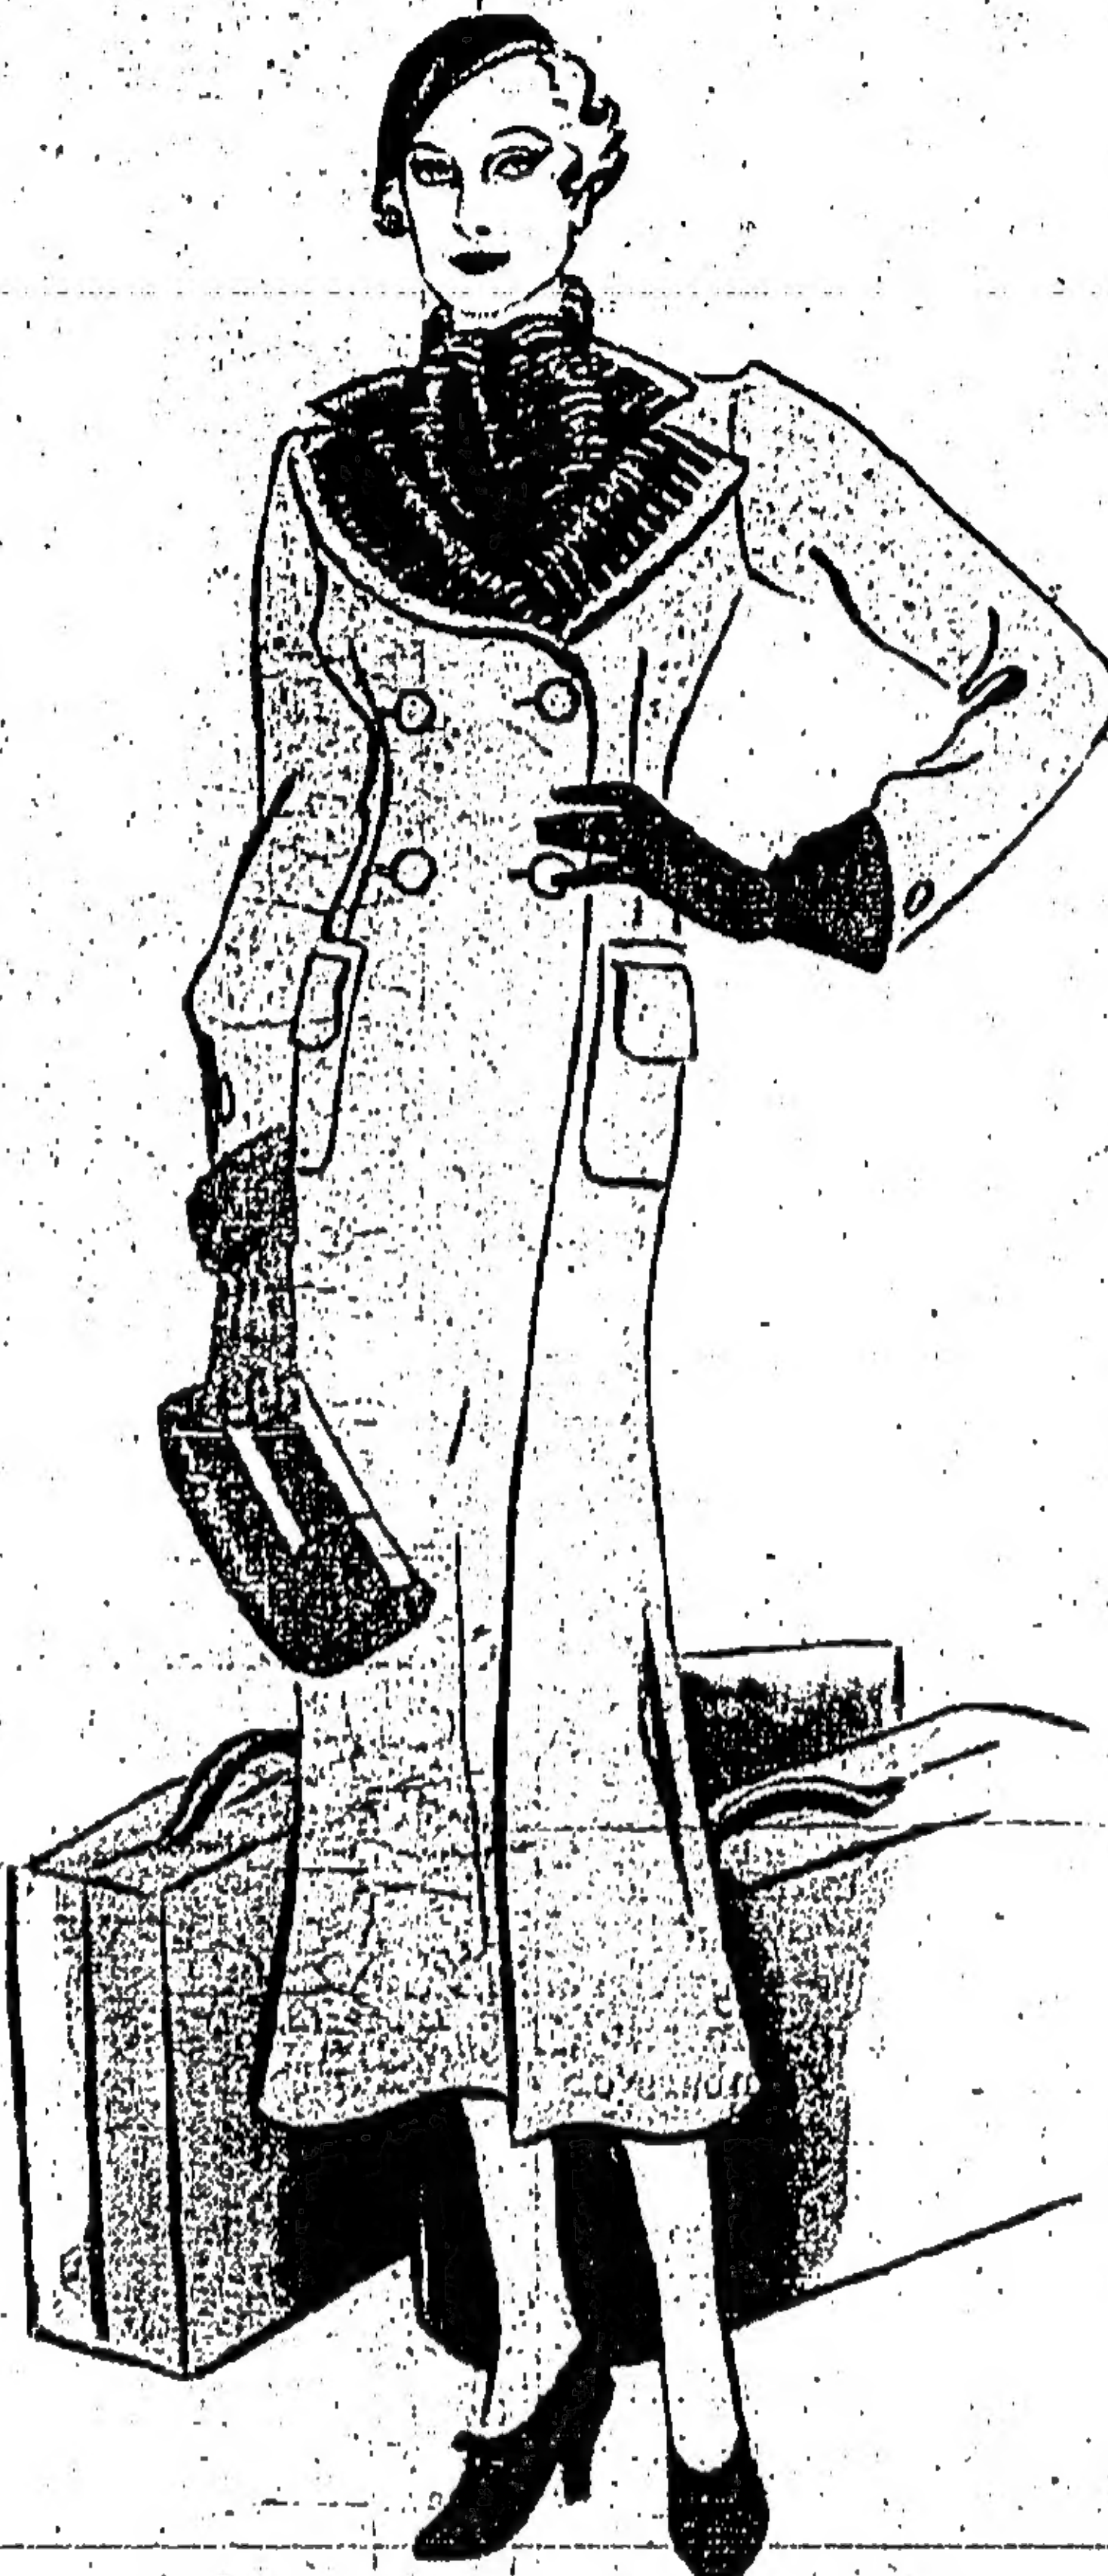

The accessories to wear with this suit include a hat (Levin model) of blue and natural belting cut in bias stripes; hand-stitched gloves in dark blue fabric; a drum-shaped bag in pin seal with silver trimming and blue oxfords of kid and twine.

A "honeymoon" negligee in Chinese red chiffon over yellow novelty crepe has voluminous sleeves tied at the elbows with yellow ribbon bows which show through the fabric.

DAINTY step-in and brassiere sets, form-fitting slips with hand-made lace, and lovely night-gowns and negligees are "musts" in a well-planned trousseau. Such a negligee as the one illustrated here is beauty personified.

Chinese red chiffon is worn over a slip of yellow novelty crepe. The voluminous sleeves, tied at the elbows with yellow ribbons which show through the fabric, and the cluster of pansies on the square neckline are fascinating features which make this negligee an outstanding trousseau fashion.

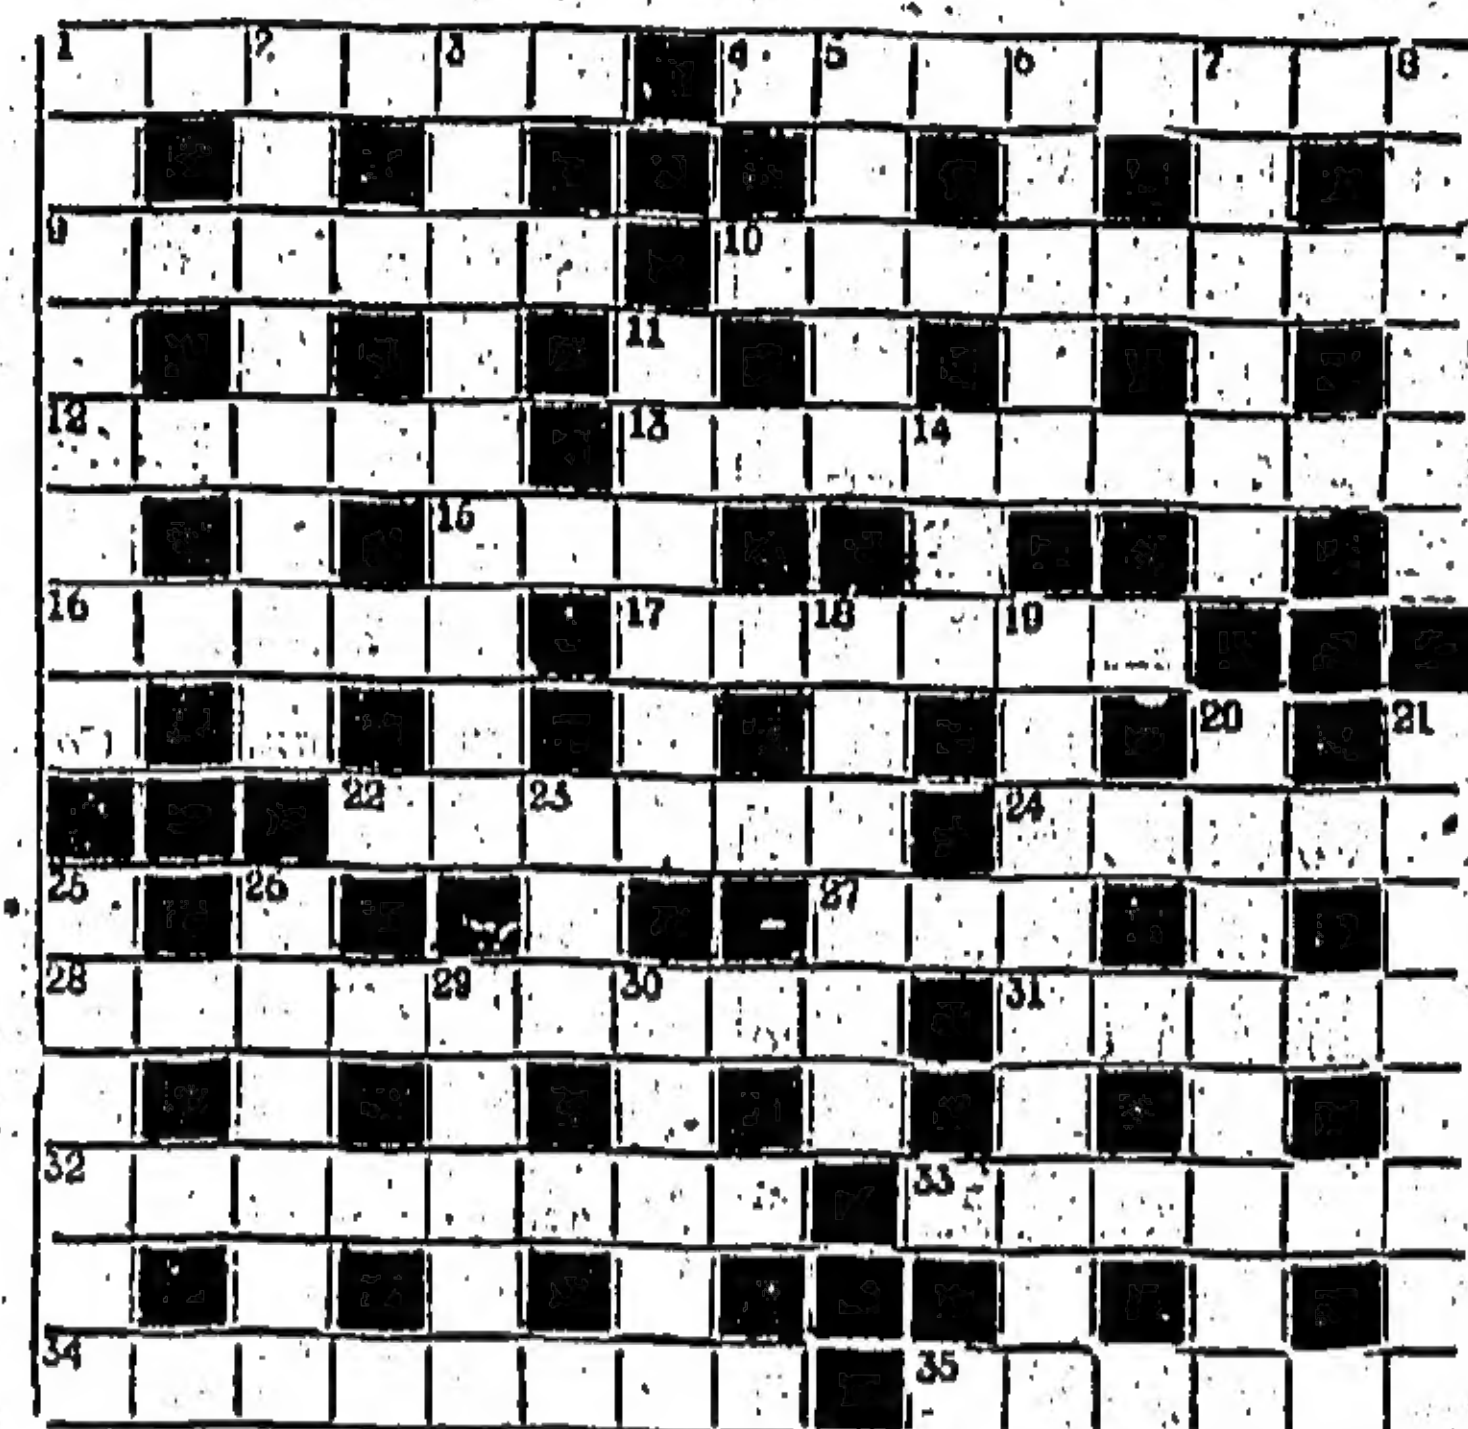

This "going-away" outfit that includes a topeat in natural coloured linen and a short-sleeved dress of blue and white tie silk is sure to please any Summer bride.

CHAPTER XXI

The summer night was deadly still. Light lightning flashed somewhere, far off to the north, and indoors the clink of crystal could faintly be heard, mingled with the sound of light, careless voices. Gypsy stood alone on the parapet, her apricot gown floating around her, her face ashen in the dimness. "Derek," she whispered faintly. "Derek!" She felt a gnawing nausea at the pit of her stomach. She was desperately afraid she was going to faint. And she continued to stand, as if rooted to the spot, frozen into a dreadful immobility. Perhaps not 30 seconds had passed, although to her these seconds ticked past like hours, before Hunt's tall form was silhouetted against the light and Hunt's agreeable voice said carelessly, "How're tricks, you two?"

"You two!" With the words Gypsy's immobility cracked and she rushed toward him as to a saviour, hysteria in her voice.

"Hunt—Hunt, he's—gone!" "Bliss? Why, he's—gone!" Hunt looked around quickly. "My God, you mean he's—gone?" He could not go on. He went to the rail, looked over. Gypsy slung her hands over her eyes.

"Come along!" He had her hand in his and they were in the candle-light room again and he was speaking, briefly, quietly. An accident, he said. If someone would come with him.

Lila had risen. Her face was chalk white above the black shadow of her gown. Marko's pearls lay on her throat.

"I was afraid of this," she said in a monotone. "I was afraid."

Chairs were pushed back, voices gabbled. Gypsy noticed dully that someone had overturned a glass of wine and that the stain was spread-ling over the face of the runners. Someone said, "Give her a drink, somebody. She needs it." Then she saw Davies holding a bottle of smelling salts to Lila's nostrils. One of the pretty young women fainted dead away and had to be carried out.

"It's got to be kept out of the papers," Lila was saying over and over, with deadly precision. As if, thought Gypsy with scorn, as if that mattered now! Everyone would know what had happened.

Marko went out with the other men; all the women were left alone. It was horrible. No one knew what to say or to do. "Derek—Gypsy simply could not let herself believe this had happened to Derek, with his strong, supple body and his crooked, faun-like smile. Why, less than two years ago he and Lila had made all sorts of propitious vows to each other; to love, to cherish, to honour. What did it all mean? Was fidelity, after all, such an unimportant thing as people seemed to think nowadays? And had Derek perished because he had believed in it?

Every time the elevator door changed they all turned their eyes fearfully in its direction. The sultry tension grew and deepened.

"I'm afraid I'm going to scream," the girl in the ice-blue confided to Gypsy. "Somebody give me a cigarette, for heaven's sake."

"Chastity affairs simply ghastly," whispered another. She looked absolutely shattered, but she kept renewing her complexion with fingers that shook a little.

"Why doesn't somebody do something?" Lila interrupted fretfully. "Where's Marko. Why did Marko have to run off and leave like that? Where is everybody?"

At length there were steps in the hall and the women looked gratefully, hopefully at Hunt as he came in. Gypsy felt she had never liked him better than she did at that moment. He seemed a very tower of strength.

He came toward them swiftly and said something in a low tone to Lila. She uttered one faint shriek and buried her face in her wadded handkerchief. Davies led her from the room.

Hunt faced the others. "He hit the parapet three storeys below," he told them gravely. "He's alive—but they think his back is broken."

If there is anything more irritating than a man's discovery, on avoiding the very jaws of temptation and rushing home to his wife, that the latter is nowhere to be found, I cannot think of it at the moment. Tom Weaver felt decidedly silly, distinctly priggish and finally, bitterly angry. Gypsy had said she would be home early; she had seemed genuinely to mean it. Here it was past midnight and she had not appeared.

Tom didn't like it. He prided himself on his modern attitude, especially toward his wife. She was a free agent, wasn't she? The days of the possessive husband were gone forever—and yet—and yet—

The telephone rang and he answered it in a cold, dispassionate voice. It was Gypsy and she was excited. Her voice sounded as though she had been crying. This made Tom angrier than ever. Fine goings on! His wife off—heaven knew where—with another man, upset by something. He couldn't hear half she said but he gathered she was on her way home. He scarcely answered her. The cold, bitterly stubborn mood which visited him infrequently was shutting down upon him. He could do nothing to conquer it.

He stalked into the bedroom, stared down at the sleeping baby. But the utter dependence and abandon of the curled small figure did not serve to dispel his gloomy temper. Although he knew it was not true, he told himself that Gypsy was neglecting the boy. She had no business rushing around as she did these days.

Presently he heard her key but he did not move. He continued to stand there, in the half-light, sulking. But his ears were alert. He heard the swish of her draperies, the click of another lamp and Gypsy's half hysterical laugh which ended in a sob. She said something unintelligible to her escort.

"Lord, you'd think the fool would have sense enough to go home now," Tom thought grimly. He went out into the hall, caught at a disadvantage after his sojourn in the dark. Blinking like an owl, he thought. Gypsy said, "Oh, darling!" in what he considered almost an indecently emotional voice, but he did not respond; he felt himself aloof. He saw the fellow looking at him oddly and he nodded, feeling like a wooden man, stiff and inhuman.

"She's had a shock," he heard the other man say.

The muscles of Tom's mouth stretched themselves in what he hoped was a sarcastic smile. "Oh, has she?" he asked. What was this all about and why didn't the chap go off and leave them?

The story tumbled out. Gypsy told most of it, tearing at her thin handkerchief. Tom got grimmer and grimmer as it progressed. So this was the sort of mess they'd got themselves into, was it?

"It will look fine in the papers to-morrow, won't it?" he asked coldly. Gypsy's eyes flew to his face. Why was he taking it this way—he could see her asking herself the question.

He lit a cigarette with fingers that shook a little.

"You shouldn't have gone in the first place," he said ugly. "You know I've been against that connection from the start. We don't belong in that crowd. You know it."

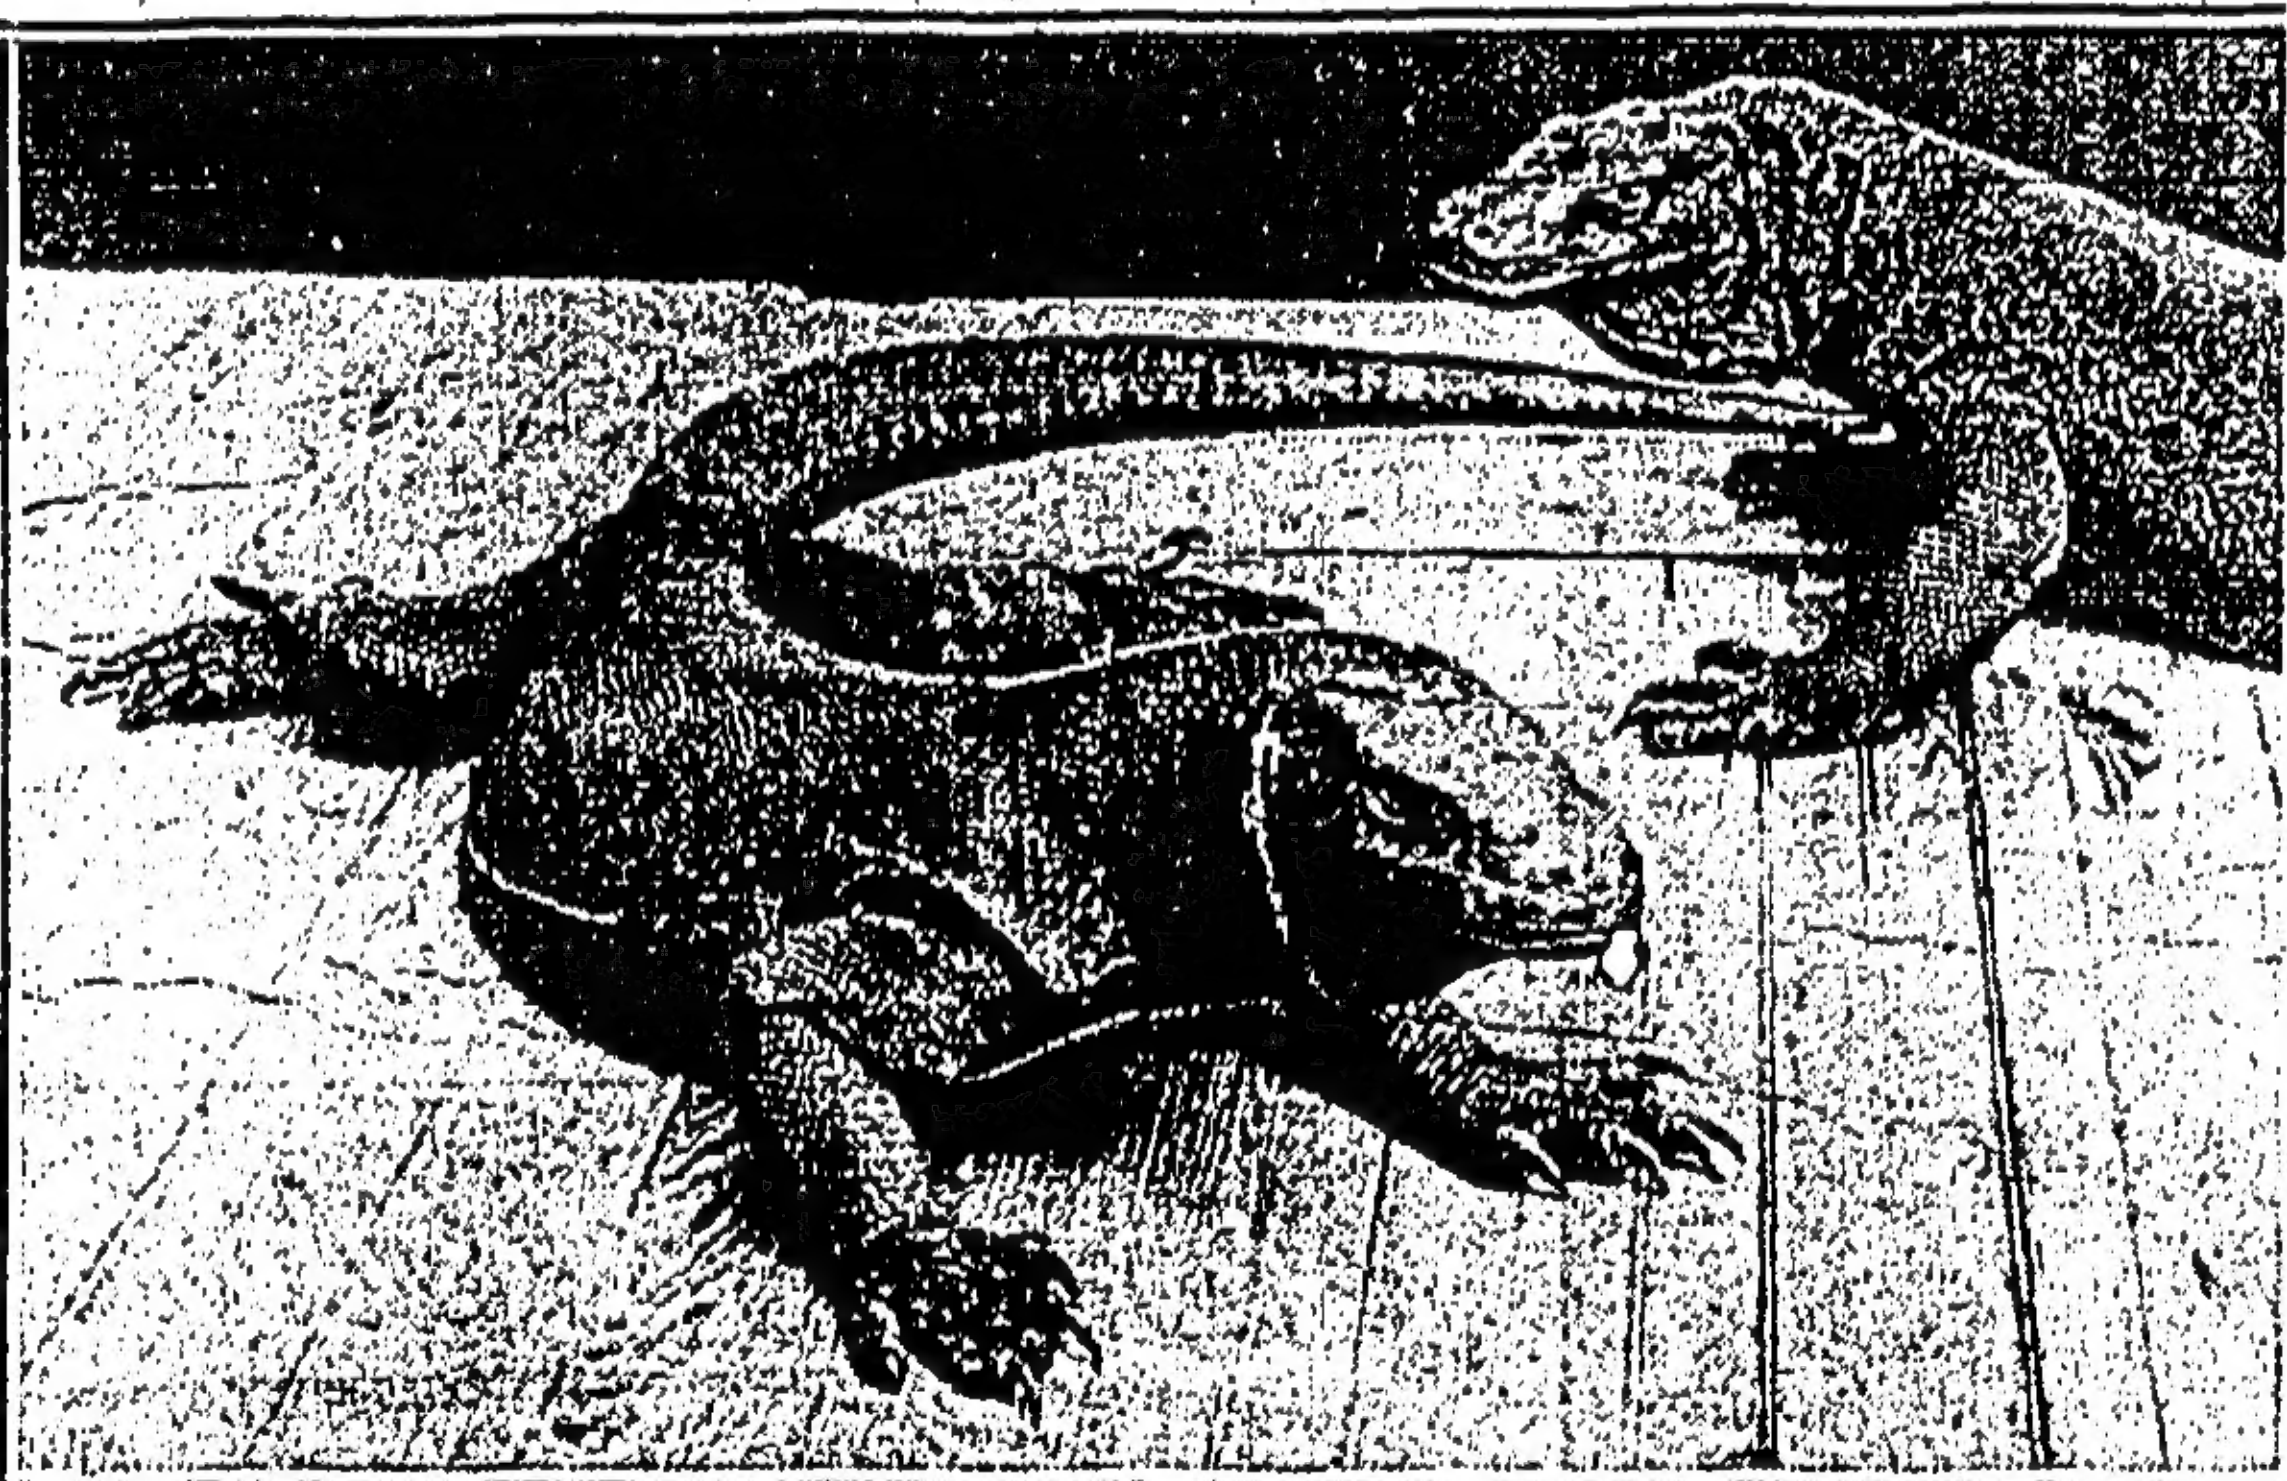

"Yes, but Tom."

He couldn't stop himself. He hated himself for going on like deeply concerned in this because I know that the social machines set up by the present Administration will break down unless they are inspired by men who in their hearts catch a larger vision than the hard-driving profit motives of the past.

RESTORATION OF THE TRIANON AT VERSAILLES. The inauguration of the "Hameau de la Reine" recently took place in the grounds of Versailles Palace. It is a farm which was built for Marie Antoinette and is composed of a set of small thatched cottages. The restoration was carried out with the Rockefeller Funds. The picture shows the main building.

"I am wondering if the religion we shall need during the next 100 years will not have much more in common with the Christianity of the second and third centuries, or possibly even with that of the Middle Ages, than with the Protestantism of the past 100 years. The strong personal initiative conferred by the Protestant religions must in some way be merged into a powerful religious attitude concerning the entire social structure."

Mr. Wallace pays tribute to the patient, long-suffering majority of working men, farmers and business men who are neither bitter nor rapacious, despite their reverses. They are slowly struggling to find the light. If, however, the Christian religion is to help them in finding that light, it must furnish the spiritually hungry people with something which is truer and more compelling than the dog-eat-dog philosophy of the classical economists and the biological scientists. He comes to the conclusion that America needs a heart trust even more than it needs a brain trust. "We are no longer faced with the problems of material scarcity. It no longer suffices, therefore, to strengthen the spiritual powers of the individual with the simple doctrine of the Psalms of David. The time has come now for the striking of a more universal note."

WARSHIP SINKS.

FOUNDERS WHILE BEING TOWED TO PORT

Tokyo, July 2.
The Navy Office announced today that the destroyer Miyuki, damaged in a collision with the Inazuma, another destroyer, on the night of June 29, has sunk while being towed to Sasebo by another warship.

There were no further casualties.

Reports of June 30 stated that the Miyuki and Inazuma collided head-on during night manoeuvres off Quelpart Island. They are 1,700-ton craft. Both it was at first reported, had sunk.

Five lives were lost and many were seriously injured. The Inazuma, it is reported, sank immediately after the impact.—Reuter.

THE "OYSTER" WRIST WATCH is the world-famous ROLEX movement effectively sealed against all the elements. It is Waterproof, Dustproof and Sandproof. Extremes of temperature cannot affect the reliability of the "OYSTER", neither the intensely cold atmosphere of Arctic regions nor the hot, moist climate of Equatorial countries, can disturb the wonderful precision movement which is hermetically sealed against all harmful elements.

This remarkable watch is even Perspiration Proof. It is essential for use in the Tropics and especially recommended to all active Sportsmen and Sportswomen.

Because of its undeviating precision and absolute reliability in all climates the "OYSTER" Wristlet is a great favourite with the "Services"—many Naval and Military Officers have expressed their entire satisfaction with the behaviour of the "OYSTER" under the most exacting conditions.

THE MUI-TSAI STATISTICS

Official statistics in regard to the mui-tsai system show that whereas in 1929 there were 4,299 names on the register, at the end of last year the number had been reduced to 2,726. To those unacquainted with the facts, it would appear that the total disappearance of the system from the Colony will be only a matter of a few years, since last year revealed a reduction of well over four hundred mui-tsai. The position is not, however, quite so simple as that. Actually, the official figures have very little real value. They start out on the assumption that the only mui-tsai in the Colony when registration was introduced four years ago were those actually registered, and the same idea is apparent in the statements regarding the reduction which has since been recorded. Actually, all that can be stated is that there were 4,299 on the register on December 1st, 1929, and 2,726 on December 31st, 1933. In other words, of the number originally registered 1,573 have since disappeared from the register either through leaving the Colony, by restoration to relatives, or as the result of marriage. It is safe to assume that only a small percentage of the mui-tsai in the Colony in 1929 were registered, and that many more have since arrived here. No check can be kept on these latter, by reason of the fact that there have been no fresh registrations during the past four years. The ban on the engaging of mui-tsai other than those who were in employment in 1929 does not mean that the only mui-tsai now in the Colony are those whose names appear on the register. There must be a constant coming and going of unregistered mui-tsai, of which it is impossible to keep track. The prosecutions undertaken from time to time only touch the fringe of the problem, although in course of time the knowledge that the system is illegal in Hongkong will doubtless gain wider currency and some impression be made on the continuance of the system locally. But the process must by the very nature of things be a very slow one. Within the limits set by the staff available for anti-mui-tsai work, and in view of the enormous difficulties presented, a really useful and beneficial contribution is being made to the solution of what is an immense problem, but nothing is to be gained by shutting our eyes to the fact that the system aimed at will persist for many long years, whether the local register shows one entry, or a thousand.

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE GERMAN SCENE

It is now possible to get a closer glimpse of the German picture. This frightfulness of the declaration of Brown Army lieutenants, guilty of little more in most cases than an overbearing sense of their own importance, itself an attitude induced by the duties demanded of them, in summary disciplining of the German people, stands out more sharply. The first-glance verdict, that the Hitler coterie were struck by moral panic, requires little amendment. What further emerges emphasises the precariousness of Herr Hitler's position. New political upheavals may be confidently expected, for it is impossible to believe that such violence as swept Germany during the week-end can ever be anything but, in the end, self-destructive.

THE CHOICE

Beneath the relatively calm surface intrigue will continue to go on between Nazi leaders and Nazi factions and between the Nazis and powerful and exceedingly patriotic German groups which are not Nazis, but which, for the moment, have been compelled to toe the line. Nothing is more obviously inevitable. The instincts of self-preservation compel a one-way decision, complete surrender of fear to discretion, or active working for the downfall of Hitler.

DISARMING THE STORM-TROOPS

The most significant of all comments on the situation comes from Herr Victor Lutze, new chief of staff of the Storm Troops. The main task now, he says, is to build up the Storm Troops as a "purely political" organisation, implying abandonment of the military aspects of the organisation. It implies, too, fear in Nazi circles of the instrument of their own creation, a weapon intended to guarantee continuity of power. No attempt is now made to deny that Hitler can no longer count upon the entire corps of the Brown Shirts. This private army includes extremely radical elements, and it is hardly possible that all have been roped in, despite the hundreds of arrests.

THE REICHSWEHR

Herr Hitler, Goering and General von Blomberg, Reichswehr commander-in-chief, recently went for a cruise in a German warship. What they discussed is a secret they kept to themselves. Nevertheless, the little birds of the Unter den Linden are whispering that the chief topic was the modus operandi in the event of such a development as marked the week-end. Is Herr Hitler now looking to the Reichswehr to maintain order?

THE FUTURE

A week ago an acknowledged expert on Germany foreshadowed the collapse of the Hitler regime within a fortnight, naming the suspect von Papen as the next Chancellor! The prediction was not entirely a product of a vivid imagination. Piecing together apparently ill-assorted fragments produces clear hints that the prophecy may not be entirely falsified by the Hitler swoop. Reliance on the Reichswehr is in itself highly dangerous to a Nazi looking for power. And for this reason. No matter what may be the cause of a Hitler downfall, his regime would almost certainly be followed by a military dictatorship with Monarchist leanings. Von Blomberg and the ex-Crown Prince prevented Hindenburg from resigning. Does that mean nothing? Or is the army prepared? Hitler would probably remain as a sort of figurehead for a while. But the military group would actually control the destinies of the country, until out of the resultant chaos there emerged a Restoration or a Communist State. The national demomonia that has permitted the intolerances of the Hitler regime may only too readily be diverted to other, and perhaps more entangling channels.

NATIONS AND THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT

By R. J. CRUIKSHANK

THE biggest man in the Roosevelt Administration after the President himself is Mr. Henry Wallace, the Secretary of Agriculture. He grows steadily in stature. His speeches—thoughtful, temperate, philosophic—have a quality all their own. He has no small change of conversation. In private life he appears a buttoned-up, almost dour man. But on the platform he conveys the impression of a profoundly honest man thinking aloud.

The average Briton would recognise and appreciate his quality at once. In physical appearance, as in the cast of his mind, he is at one with those Scots who have made so great a contribution to the material and moral strength of the Empire. He is the Shorter Catechist of the Administration, the custodian of its conscience.

It is appropriate that it should have been left to Mr. Wallace to expound the religious basis of the New Deal. His new book, "Statesmanship and Religion," is a valuable guide to what is happening in the United States to-day. It shows the great moral forces that lie behind the "Roosevelt Revolution."

For Mr. Wallace represents the Puritan tradition at its finest. There are many thousands of men of his type in this country, particularly in the Middle-West and the Western States. Their old faith has been modified by contact with the machine age, but their fundamental attitude to life remains profoundly serious, and they still believe in the supremacy of the moral law in the Universe. They are more humane, more kindly than their ancestors, but they retain the old, grave sense of man's high destiny and urgent responsibility.

Mr. Wallace is an interesting example of a Puritan who has abandoned the dogmas of his people, and, driven forward by an inner necessity of his nature, is seeking a new religion which may be described as politics transmuted by divinity. He believes that the orthodox Protestantism in which he was grounded is inadequate to the needs of the modern world.

This faith, he says, was enormously useful in building up America, for, out of the proud and rugged individualism which it inspired, the pioneers carved a nation from the wilderness. It was not surprising that these hardy fighters turned to the Psalms of David for spiritual meat and drink. Calvinism made a virtue of work. So did Lutheranism. So did Wesleyanism. And as hard work and careful saving were essential to the existence of the country, these faiths were of the highest social value.

The pioneers lived in an economy of scarcity. But to-day we have come to the economy of abundance. "Because we have not learned how to live with abundance," writes Mr. Wallace, "men go hungry and ragged. Because our great business institutions have saved too strenuously in the fat years, and accumulated huge corporate surpluses at the cost of their workers' purchasing power, demand lagged far behind supply, depression came and men lost their jobs."

Mr. Wallace believes that laissez-faire and dog-eat-dog economics are the natural outgrowth of the old-fashioned religion. This loss of faith in orthodoxy, however, has only served to heighten his conviction in the complete economic rightness of the Old Testament prophets and of the Sermon on the Mount. It is noteworthy to find the most influential member of the President's Cabinet asserting:

"For nineteen hundred years it seemed that the Sermon on the Mount was economic nonsense. Now its realization is not only possible, it is the only way out of chaos."

"The world is now ripe for a type of religion which is truly catholic in the original sense of the term. I wish that in some way it might be so universal as to embrace Buddhists, Mohammedans, Jews, Protestants and Catholics."

"It should be possible for the people in all these religions to have a fellow feeling for those who strive for the good life in the other religions."

It is no secret that the Secretary of Agriculture has always fought those influences which have tended towards a narrow nationalism, but in "Statesmanship and Religion" he comes out into the open against them with trenchant force. He writes:

"It is true that we can have a very high standard of living if we develop a spirit and economic policy of intense nationalism such as has been followed by certain countries. Spiritually we shall have been defeated indeed, and shall have accepted a pagan nationalism as our God."

"From the religious point of view, I feel confident that we must expand our vision to embrace far-off countries and must take steps to adjust our economic affairs so that we are benefiting the far-off countries at the same time that we are benefiting the rank and file of our own people. A modern Isaiah, seeing the possibilities of modern transportation and communication and observing the national barriers imposed by the nations against each other since the war would cry out against international injustices. He would go to the people of the different nations with his message and call for a New Deal among nations."

"Religion to my mind is the most practical thing in the world. In so saying, I am not talking about church-going, or charity, or any of the other outward manifestations of what is popularly called religion. By religion I mean the force which governs the attitude of men in their inmost hearts towards God and their fellow-men."

"To-day, I am glad to say that economics, science and religion are all re-examining the facts under pressure from the common man who is appalled by the tragic nonsense of misery and want in the midst of tremendous world stocks of essential raw materials."

"Science has given us control over nature far beyond the wildest imaginings of our grandfathers. But unfortunately the religious attitude which produced such keen scientists and aggressive business men makes it impossible for us to live with the balanced abundance which is ours as soon as we are willing to accept it with clean, understanding hearts."

"To enter the Kingdom of Heaven brought to earth and expressed in terms of rich material life it will be necessary to have a reformation even greater than that of Luther and Calvin. I am (Continued on Page 4.)

The Very Idea!

A BILLET DOUX.

By George.

AMONG our correspondents to-day we detected an unusual envelope, pink in colour and faintly scented. Altogether a quite uncommon member for our selection except that the name was spelt wrongly.

We opened it. It was from Bane-Awforde who had used this novel disguise in an attempt to get us to read their monthly pica.

We appreciate enterprise, and throwing the envelope away to avoid misunderstandings, we opened the letter and read as under:

"Dear Sir or Madam, We beg to draw your attention to our account amounting to $200 which, we think, might possibly have been overlooked by you. We should appreciate a settlement of this account with a view to keeping our books up to date. Thanking you in anticipation,

We are, Dear Sir or Madam, TMR/MJ Yrs Ffly.

The Editor being away there was practically nothing to do in this office, so we peered off our jacket bearing Bane-Awforde's name, took out our pen and obtained at the same establishment and wrote the first number of that famous bundle of correspondence which stands now as our memorial to our fight against dictatorship.

Dear Bane-Awforde (we began spiritily) Be your communication TMR/MJ (which we take it stands for Trumpeter Major, though this item is not charged to our account) we are deeply hurt at being again obliged to point out to you that our name and your rendering of it are still far from unanimous and though admitting that the fault may be ours, it is such a longstanding one that we trust you will find it possible to fall into line with Somerset House and our intimate friends by addressing us in future as Smythe-byllintone. Smythe was our grandfather's name and he left such a meagre local estate that we are loath to give up anything to which he had the remotest legal claim. In case your shroff should be obliged to call upon us personally, the name is pronounced Smythe-byllintone as spelt and the hyphen is omitted in ordinary conversation.

As regards the comparatively small matter of initials we feel that it is wasting your time and ours to re-iterate that A.J.M. does not stand for JAM; does not indicate Maj. of army rank, and is not an abbreviation of the girl's name.

However—if you could convince your clerk that we are absolutely sure of our Christian names and can attest them if necessary with a birth certificate, we feel sure that he could be prevailed upon to see eye to eye with us in a matter which is as embarrassing for our wife as it is painful to the memory of Grandpa from whom we also inherit our initials.

Trusting that we have dealt fully with the matters raised by you in your charming letter of yesterday, we close on a note of optimism as regards the 1934 industrial outlook and express the sincere hope that your esteemed firm will go on from prosperity to prosperity in the golden days which we see just beyond the horizon.

We have the pleasure to remain, Dear Bane-Awforde, Yours respectfully, A. J. M. SMYTHE-BYLLINTONE. A.D./1934.

R.I.P.

Joe Jacoby is dead... is dead... No more with light and airy tread Will he traverse our pages Whilst taking out—the fatuous— His dainty little looking glass, At far too-frequent stages. And Madge? That darling of the Peak, Uncouthly handsome; masculine-ly chic. Will flirt with us no more: We left her spread out on the grass With skewers through her hair made fast— Her Soul has Gone Before. How sad it is that Love's sweet way Should always make the woman pay For every situation! For though dear Madge got off half-way She paid for both and lost the day. A bitter combination! But when young Reg's youth is spent To his first love he may relent And bring her consolation. And if Madge then applies her too. Be sure it's 'cause she loves him so And not for castigation!

"This would be perfect if we only had a murder mystery to read."

"BUNNY" AUSTIN SHOULD HAVE BEATEN SHIELDS

TWO

WITH TWO MATCH POINTS
ON SERVICE

FRED PERRY POOR

London, July 2.
It is now revealed that "Bunny" Austin had wonderful opportunities of beating Frank Shields in the Wimbledon quarter-final, but that the American's great fighting spirit pulled him out of two extremely tight corners.

In the final set Austin was within two points of the match on his own service at 6-4, and then collapsed.

At one stage he took a 3-1 lead in the third set. According to a Reuter message, Austin was superb in the first two sets which he won at 6-4, 6-2, leaving Shields dazzled with his driving and volleying. The Englishman gave every indication of another straight sets victory when he went to 3-1 in the third set, but Shields staged an amazing rally. He speeded up the play and forced Austin into errors.

Saving the set at 7-5, he quickly captured the fourth at 6-2, Austin obviously saving himself for the bigger effort.

It looked as though Austin would yet win. He went to a 5-4 lead in the final set and had 30-love on his own service. Then Shields scored points with brilliant drop shots, and in the final game, need the Englishman to win a dramatic victory.

Up to this match, Austin had not conceded a single set in any of his encounters at the current Wimbledon meeting, and throughout played well enough to justify the hope that he would win the singles championship.

PERRY UNCOMFORTABLE.

Fred Perry made his way into the semi-finals at the expense of George M. Lott, but he wasn't anywhere near his best, and won more as a result of superior stamina than on stroke play.

Many of Perry's shots were poor and he often revealed faulty judgment. Lott actually led 6-2 in the fourth set, but Perry held the rallies and finally the American was so tired that he could hardly wield the racket.

The complete scores of the quarter-finals were:

F. X. Shields (America) beat H. W. Austin (Britain) 4-6, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3, 7-5.

J. Crawford (Australia) beat I. Stoecken (America) 7-5, 2-6, 7-5, 6-0.

S. B. Wood (America) beat V. G. Kirby (S. Africa) 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0.

Characteristic study of Frank X. Shields, conqueror of H. W. Austin in the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon championship.

Draw For Women's Last Eight

ENGLISH PAIR
MAY CLASH

London, July 2.
The draw for the last eight in the women's singles championship at Wimbledon show the following pairing.

Miss Jacobs (U.S.) v. Fr. Aussem (Germany)
Miss S. Palfrey (U.S.) v. Mme. Mathieu (France)
Miss Round (Britain) v. Mlle. Payot (Switzerland)

Miss Scriven (Britain) v. Miss J. Hartigan (Australia)
This suggests that if both Miss Round and Miss Scriven survive they will clash in the semi-final, and thus ensure British representation in the final—British Wire-les.

F. J. Perry (Britain) beat G. M. Lott (America) 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 10-8.—Reuter.

ALL-AMERICAN FINAL?

There is a distinct possibility of an all-American final as at Queen's Club, although it is somewhat improbable. The draw would seem to indicate that Crawford will oppose Shields in the semi-final and Perry will meet Sydney Wood. A Crawford-Perry final would be one of the greatest attractions Wimbledon has had for years.

The committee's seeding was vindicated by the entry of six of the eight "seeded" players into the last eight. Only do Stefan and Von Cramm failed to make the grade, and the latter was unexpectedly beaten in the fourth round by V. G. Kirby of South Africa.

WINNING POSITION FOR AUSTRALIANS

Surrey Again Dismissed Very Cheaply

London, July 2.
Surrey are as good as beaten. The Australians, although themselves unable to score with freedom to-day, had no difficulty in establishing themselves in a winning position.

Having dismissed Surrey for 175, they went on to score, 251, Ponsford leading the way with 85, assisted by Kippax with 50.

Surrey again fared badly at the wicket, Grimmett's break bowling proving too good for them. They were sent back for 184, Grimmett taking 5 for 33.

The Australians have only to score 109 to win.—Reuter.

MIDLAND LEAGUE OF 20 CLUBS

Norwich City One Of Them

The Midland Football League next season will consist of 20 clubs, for at the annual meeting in Sheffield, Norwich City, Peterborough, Grantham and Frickley were admitted, whilst York City withdrew.

Norwich City undertook to pay the hotel expenses of clubs who had to stay overnight, and also assist in the travelling expenses beyond the present area of the competition. It was announced that a new limited company had been formed at Peterborough, and that they had no connection with the old Peterborough and Fletton United.

It was decided to do away with the rule giving 5 per cent. of the gates to visiting clubs, which was adopted last season as an experiment.

At the annual meeting of the Birmingham Football League last month the resignation of Port Vale was accepted with regret. An application for membership by Cannarvon was unsuccessful. After a resolution to restrict the membership to 18 clubs had been defeated, it was decided that the secretary should advertise for a suitable club to fill the vacancy, but should there be no applications, the League should carry on with 19 clubs.

K.C.C. Tennis Team Loses To Canton German Club

BODIKER IN WONDERFUL FORM AGAINST E. C. FINCHER

Miss Madge Griffiths Wins All Four Matches

(By "Varitas").

Week-end tennis trips to Canton by members of the Kowloon Cricket Club always mean something to be looked back upon with keen delight by the visitors; such was the case this last week-end when at the invitation of the Deutscher Garten Klub, the K.C.C., visited Tungshan, and engaged the German players in a series of tennis matches, and at the same time participated in a most enjoyable social programme.

The complete comfort and happiness of the visitors was the first consideration of the hosts, and in every respect cause was given for keen appreciation of the hospitality of the home club. In addition to which tennis, under ideal conditions, and providing keen, but the best type of friendly rivalry, events—in the annals of these inter-club tennis tournaments.

The Deutscher Klub deservedly carried off the tennis honours, finally winning by 15 matches to 10. The K.C.C. players found themselves at a slight disadvantage, but this in no way detracted from the merits of the home team's success.

BRILLIANT BODIKER.

Matches between Georg Bodiker, the club's champion and one of Canton's leading exponents, and Teddy Fincher, K.C.C. idol, are always thoroughly enjoyed, providing as they do an entertaining spectacle.

Bodiker, reared on hard courts, is always 15 better when playing on this surface, and is one of the most difficult players in South China to beat under such conditions. It was therefore not surprising to see him beat Fincher in the much-anticipated singles. Nevertheless it was the finest display I have ever seen from Bodiker. Maintaining perfect control over his fast drives on both hands, he gained such absolute mastery of the situation that Fincher never looked likely to avert a straight sets defeat.

Teddy, of course, is not the same player on sand surface as on grass, but it needed a very good player to upset Bodiker on his form last Saturday. Bodiker was surprisingly good overhead and attacked the net with far more confidence than usual. But it was his well laid baseline campaign which made it possible for him to win so comfortably. He made the absolute minimum of mistakes off the ground and obtained such pace from his drives, that Teddy had little chance of taking the net, being pegged back and forced into defensive chop strokes.

K.C.C. LADIES ON TOP.

From the K.C.C. viewpoint, the most pleasing feature of the tennis was the success of their ladies. Miss Madge Griffiths figures in four official victories and one unofficial mixed doubles win.

It is doubtful if she has ever played better. Although on a strange court, she was steadiness

BOWLS SENSATION

L. R. WHANT BEATS U. M. OMAR

A sensation was caused in the Open Lawn Bowls Championship yesterday afternoon, when L. R. Whant of the Civil Service Cricket Club, defeated U. M. Omar, title holder in 1923 and 1931, and runner-up in 1926, by 21 shots to 20 in the second round on the Police Recreation Club green. Omar, who defeated Whant in the first round of the championship in 1932, failed to score until the sixth head, gaining a single. On the eleventh head, Whant led by 12 shots to 3. Omar played very good bowls to take the lead at 17-16 on the 21st head and on the 24th head the score was 10-10. The Crispengower player was within match shot on the 25th head but failed to score the necessary point, and Whant gained a two on the 26th head to win the match. The green played heavy on the first few heads but became faster as the game progressed.

BASTO DEFEATS POOLER.

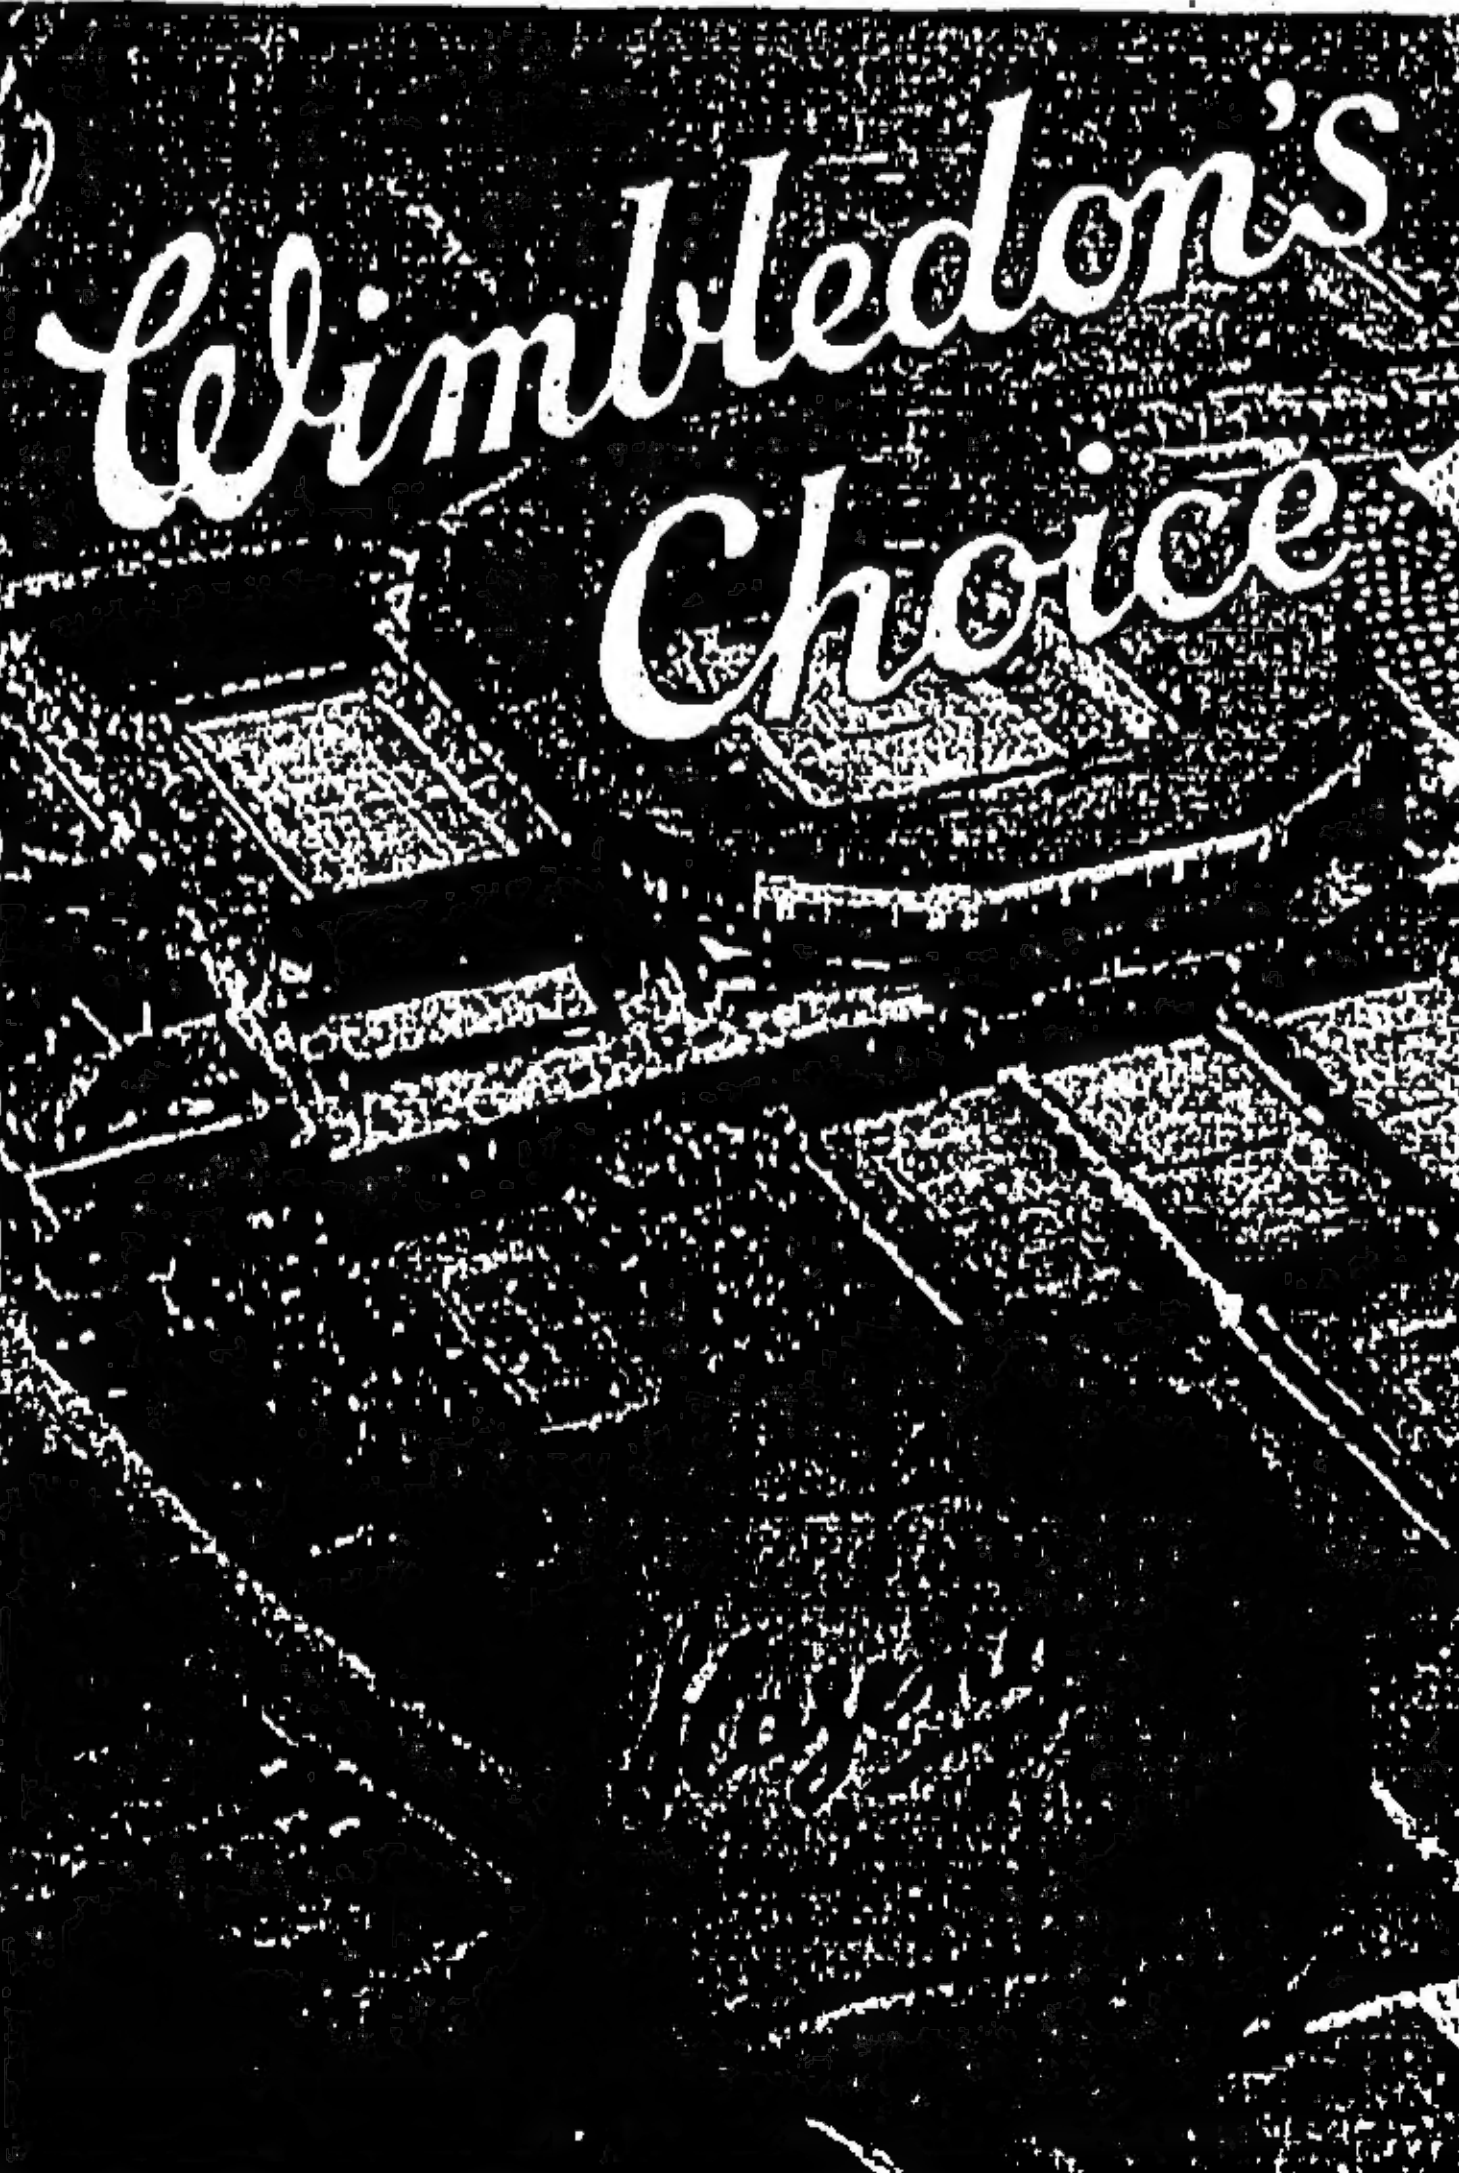

A close game was played at the Hongkong Electric Recreation Club green at North Point, yesterday afternoon when Dr. R. A. Basto defeated John Pooler by 21 shots to 18 in the second round of the Open Singles Bowls Championship.

RINKS CHAMPIONSHIP GAME.

In the third round of the Open Rinks Championship, W. Forrest, A. E. Carey, W. Mair and G. C. Moss (skip) defeated R. G. Craig, J. Kempton, W. Greig and J. C. Brown (skip) by 21 shots to 15 on the Civil Service C. C. green yesterday afternoon.

entertainment. The Deutscher Klub carried the day in both matches, E. Dillner beating W. W. Hirst in straight sets, and with H. Schneider overcame Hirst and J. S. Smith.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Have you noticed that the play of the hand at contract is far superior to the play we were accustomed to at auction? In other words, we hear more of end plays, squeezes, and coups.

Why? Because the bidding at contract gives a lot of information as to location of high cards, while at auction there was probably only one bid to the hand and the enemy did not disclose the location of any of their high cards.

I believe that the beginners spend too much time adding up their half-tricks and quarter tricks, etc., to see how many honour cards they hold. Listen to the bidding of the opponents. It plays an important part in the play of the hand later.

A good example is given to-day in a hand played by Dr. D. D. Tomb, a member of the Youngstown team which recently won the Ohio State contract team-of-four championship, first team outside of Cleveland to win this event.

The bidding is according to the one-over-one system. Dr. Tomb and his partner, when the hand was played, however, were using the artificial club bid, but arrived at the same contract.

The Play
Dr. Tomb was sitting in the South. West opened the ace of clubs and then shifted to the eight of diamonds, which Dr. Tomb won with the nine. He now had two good clubs on which he could discard the two losing spades from dummy and cross-ruff the hand out.

However, the fact that West did not double marked East with the ace of hearts, so Dr. Tomb decided to set up dummy's hearts.

A small diamond was played and won in dummy with the queen. The king of hearts was led and East made it easy, going up with the ace. Declarer ruffed with the jack of diamonds.

A small club was ruffed in dummy with the five of diamonds. A small heart was led and ruffed with the ace of diamonds. The seven of diamonds was led and won in dummy with the king, which picked up the outstanding ten of diamonds from East.

The three good hearts were cashed, South discarding his three losing spades. And it was now unnecessary to take the spade finesse, as the declarer had only the good ace of spades and king and queen of clubs.

Today's Contract Problem
What would your original bid be, holding the South-hand? How should the bidding proceed? And if South arrives at a contract of six no trump, and West opens the queen of spades, how should the hand be played?

MARRIED FLIRTS

this but some inner force drove him. "That woman is rotten clear through," he stated clearly. "Of course, if you want to tie yourself up with people like that it's none of my business."

Hunt interrupted. "Look here, Weaver, you mustn't talk to her that way."

He glared. "Oh, mustn't I?" "No. None of this is any fault of hers. A man comes into a party drunk. He makes a scene—he has a fall. I fail to see how Gypsy is to blame."

"Perhaps," said Tom in a tone icy with anger, "perhaps all this is none of your affair."

"Oh, boys, boys!" Gypsy cried on a note of despair. "Stop it. You're both being ridiculous. Tomorrow we'll all laugh at this. We're strung up now. We're not normal."

She held out her hand to Hunt. "Good night, and thanks for seeing me through it."

"I hate to..." He took her hand reluctantly, glanced at Tom with irony. "Sorry, old man."

Tom barely nodded. His attitude was that of a host unable to wait until the unwelcome guest has bowed himself out. When the door had closed after him Gypsy said, very low, "Oh, why did you behave like that? So unnecessary."

"This, he felt, was the last straw. His own wife defending the other fellow, upbraiding him."

"So that's the way it is! You'll take his part against me. He's a fatuous ass and I can't stand him around any longer. People are talking."

Her eyes blazed. "Who?" "Only to-night a woman said something."

"I thought you were working to-night," she flared at him. She had flunk her little velvet wrap aside and stood revealed in all her desirability. Her eyes were feverishly bright with excitement and fatigue. The apricot gown brought out every alluring curve of her charming figure. Never had Tom seen her look so utterly adorable and yet as she stood there, defying him, he felt that it was not love he had for her in his heart—but hatred, almost.

"I was working," he said thickly, angrily. His choler almost choked him. "Who said I wasn't?"

Can this be us, quarreling so horribly, cruelly, cheaply? thought Gypsy with despair.

She made one last desperate effort at sanity.

"I'm worn out with this dreadful night," she said reasonably. "We'll talk it over in the morning. Tom, if you don't mind. I can't think..." She put her hands to her throbbing temples. The memory of Derek's distraught face was with her.

He reached out, his fingers gripping one small wrist with a grip of iron.

"We'll talk now and you'll listen," he rasped. "Or I'll walk out of the door this instant and you'll not see me again."

GLORIOUS FOURTH.

ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE

The fourth day of July of each year—the Glorious Fourth—is celebrated throughout the world by Americans as the day on which the independence of the American colonies was proclaimed.

The 158th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence occurs to-morrow. In Hongkong, the American community will fittingly celebrate the occasion by a Reception at the American Club.

Owing to the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jenkins this evening, the duties of receiving the guests will devolve upon Mr. L. H. Gourley, Acting Consul General, Mr. J. A. Shaw, Chairman of the Fourth of July Committee and Mr. Charles Benson, Chairman of the American Club.

The Reception will be held from noon to 1.30 p.m., and a cordial invitation is extended to members of the public who desire to express their felicitations and goodwill to the members of the American community resident in the Colony.

The Aftermath of Maternity

The joy of motherhood, great as it may be, is not of itself sufficient to restore strength and vitality to a system which has become weakened by the recent great strain imposed upon it, and though nature decreed that motherhood should entail no serious consequences, the artificial modes of modern life have increased the possibility of impairment of health.

At this time more than at any other, it is necessary for the mother's blood to be rich, pure and plentiful, thereby strengthening the nervous system and ensuring for the life she has brought into the world the maximum chance for health and happiness.

When mothers as well as those who are anticipating the arrival of a little one will build up their blood and nerves by means of a reliable tonic of which there is none better known for the purpose than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, renowned for more than fifty years.

By their tonic action whereby new, rich, red blood is created at every dose, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved unique in their ability to recruit failing strength, increase vitality, build up the blood and nerves, and restore complete health and vigour. To the nursing mother they are invaluable.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the world famous blood and nerve tonic, are equally good for men as for women, and they can also be given, with perfect safety, to run-down, pale, anaemic children. Obtainable from chemists everywhere.

TRAIN BOMBED

NO BRITON AMONG CASUALTIES

Tokyo, July 2. A Japanese report from Mukden states that no Briton was killed when the through train from Peking to Mukden was bombed in the vicinity of Lufu on July 1. It is reported that the Chinese killed included three women, a child and a student. The train was searched after the bombing, but the culprit escaped.

The outrage has not affected traffic on the line. To-day's train for Mukden, being crowded, the Japanese guards were increased to nine. The train from Mukden arrived on time. Nothing untoward occurred.

The first report of the bombing received on Sunday, was that an explosion occurred in a third class carriage, when the train was 50 miles east of Tientsin. Four were reported killed and 11 injured. The report also stated that an unknown Englishman was among the dead.

Express Is Through.

Tientsin, July 2. Despite the bombing yesterday of the P.M.R. train from Peking to Mukden, composed of ornate South Manchuria Railway cars, was well patronised.

Chinese and Japanese military guards, in strong detachments, occupied alternate cars.

A full list of casualties in the bombing incident yesterday has been issued by the railway authorities and discloses that all casualties were Chinese. No foreigners were involved.

Inquiry at the railway head offices in Tokyo from Shangkai, respecting the report that an Englishman was killed, have brought emphatic denials that any foreigner was among the casualties.—Reuter.

SEDUCTION CHARGE

JURY VERDICT AGAINST ALBERTA'S PREMIER

Edmonton, Alberta, July 2. The Hon. J. E. Brownlee, Premier of Alberta, was ordered by the Supreme Court jury to pay Miss Vivian MacMillan $10,000 damages for intemperance and seduction, and her father, the complainant, $5,000.

Miss MacMillan is the daughter of the Mayor of Edmonton. She entered the Government Service in 1930 as a typist, being then 19 years of age.

It was alleged that the misconduct was carried on for a period of two and a half years. Brownlee strenuously denied the charge against him.

The Chief Justice of Alberta strongly disagreed with the jury's verdict and did not enter judgment against respondent.—Reuter.

The Hon. J. E. Brownlee has been Premier of the Province of Alberta since 1925. A lawyer by profession, he was for several years general counsel for the United Grain Growers and the United Farmers of Alberta Association. He was not a candidate in the Alberta Provincial General Elections of 1921, but on the foundation of the Greenfield Government was appointed Attorney-General and later was elected by acclamation for the constituency of Ponoka.

SOVIET PROTEST.

RESENT ADVICE TO RAILWAY GUARDS

Moscow, July 2. The Soviet Consul-General at Harbin has been instructed to make representations to the Japanese diplomatic body against the reported editorial in the Harbin Times which admonishes the guards of the Chinese Eastern Railway to shoot all Communists and Soviet citizens near the railway who appeared to be suspicious characters.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

WHAT SUMMER BRIDES WEAR "GOING AWAY"

Silk Dress With Linen Coat Ideal Honeymoon Suit

By Marian Young

NEW YORK.—Lucky is the bride who chooses her trousseau from 1934's crop of early summer clothes. This is a year when going-away clothes and honeymoon apparel are as fascinating as a bride's orange blossoms.

Next in importance to the wedding gown itself is the ensemble the bride wears starting on her honeymoon. It may be a strict tulle with interesting pique touches at throat and wrists—perfect for the bride who is going on a sea voyage; a dressmaker suit of light-weight woollen or heavy silk crepe, depending on the climate to be encountered; a redingote which is always good at seashore or mountain resort, and which, in addition, is grand for travelling; some kind of an ensemble that includes dress and matching toper that can be worn over other frocks in the wardrobe.

The outfit shown at left is an ideal "going-away" suit. It consists of a natural coloured full-length coat in a rather knobby linen that is wrinkle-proof and a tie silk dress with short sleeves and a flattering high neckline.

The lapels and turned-down collar on the double-breasted coat are lined with blue and white tie silk to match the dress that fastens on the left side with silver hooks. The buttons on the coat are of self-material.

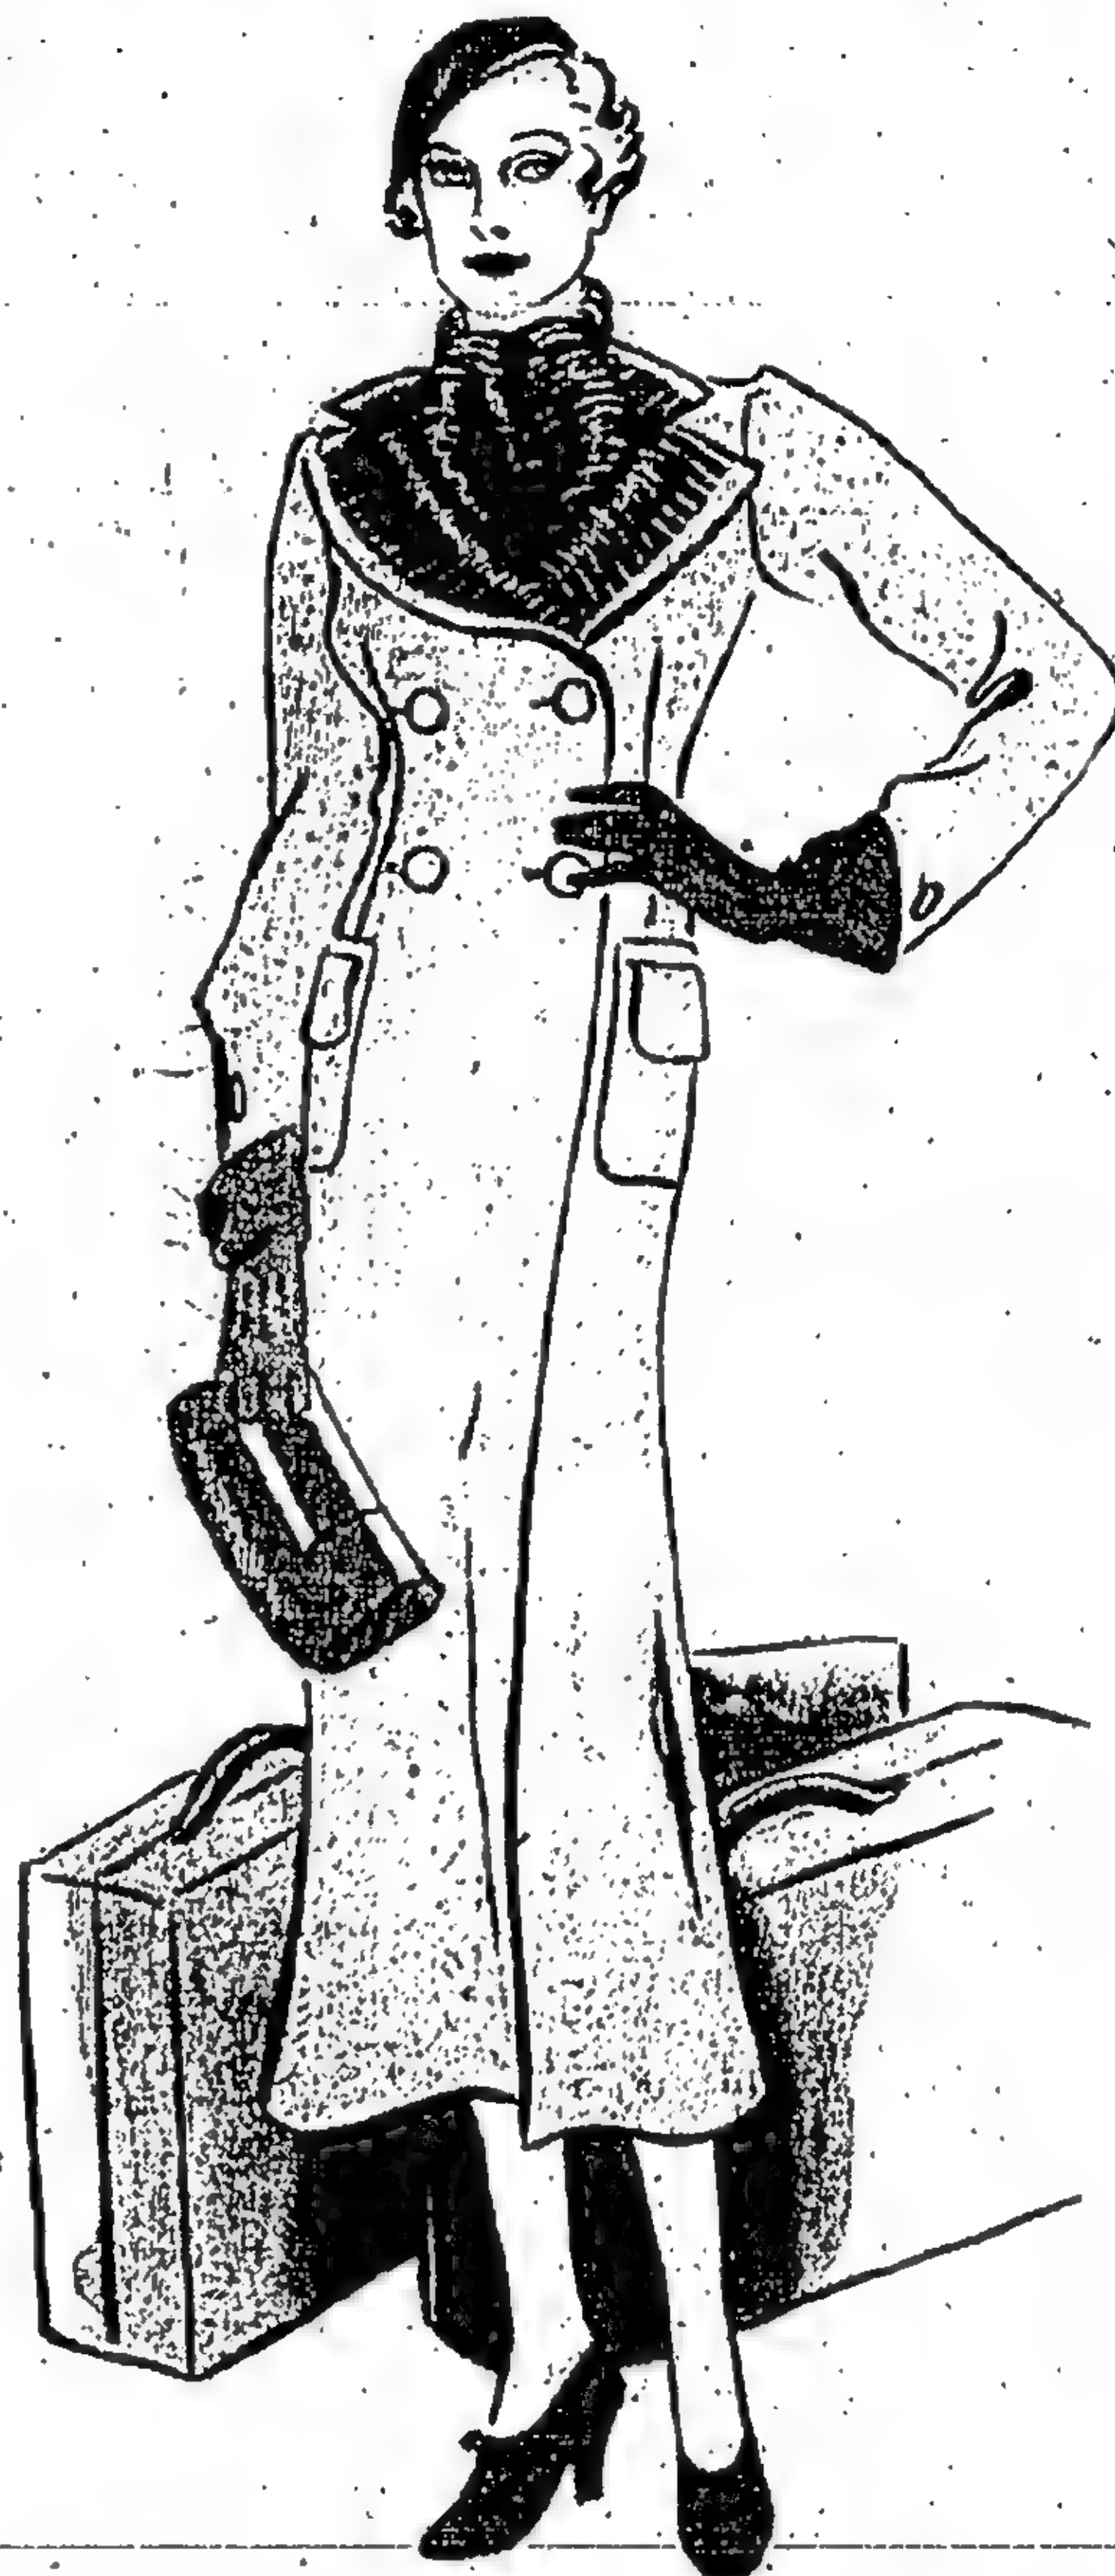

The accessories to wear with this suit include a hat (Lavin model) of blue and natural bolting cut in bias stripes; hand-stitched gloves in dark blue fabric; a drum-shaped bag in pla seal with silver trimming and blue oxfords of kid and twine.

A "honeymoon" negligee in Chinese red chiffon over yellow novelty crepe has voluminous sleeves tied at the elbows with yellow ribbon bows which show through the fabric.

DAINTY step-in and brassiere sets, form-fitting slips with hand-made lace, and lovely night-gowns and negligees are "musts" in a well-planned trousseau. Such a negligee as the one illustrated here is beauty personified.

Chinese red chiffon is worn over a slip of yellow novelty crepe. The voluminous sleeves, tied at the elbows with yellow ribbons which show through the fabric, and the cluster of panicles on the square neckline are fascinating features which make this negligee an outstanding trousseau fashion.

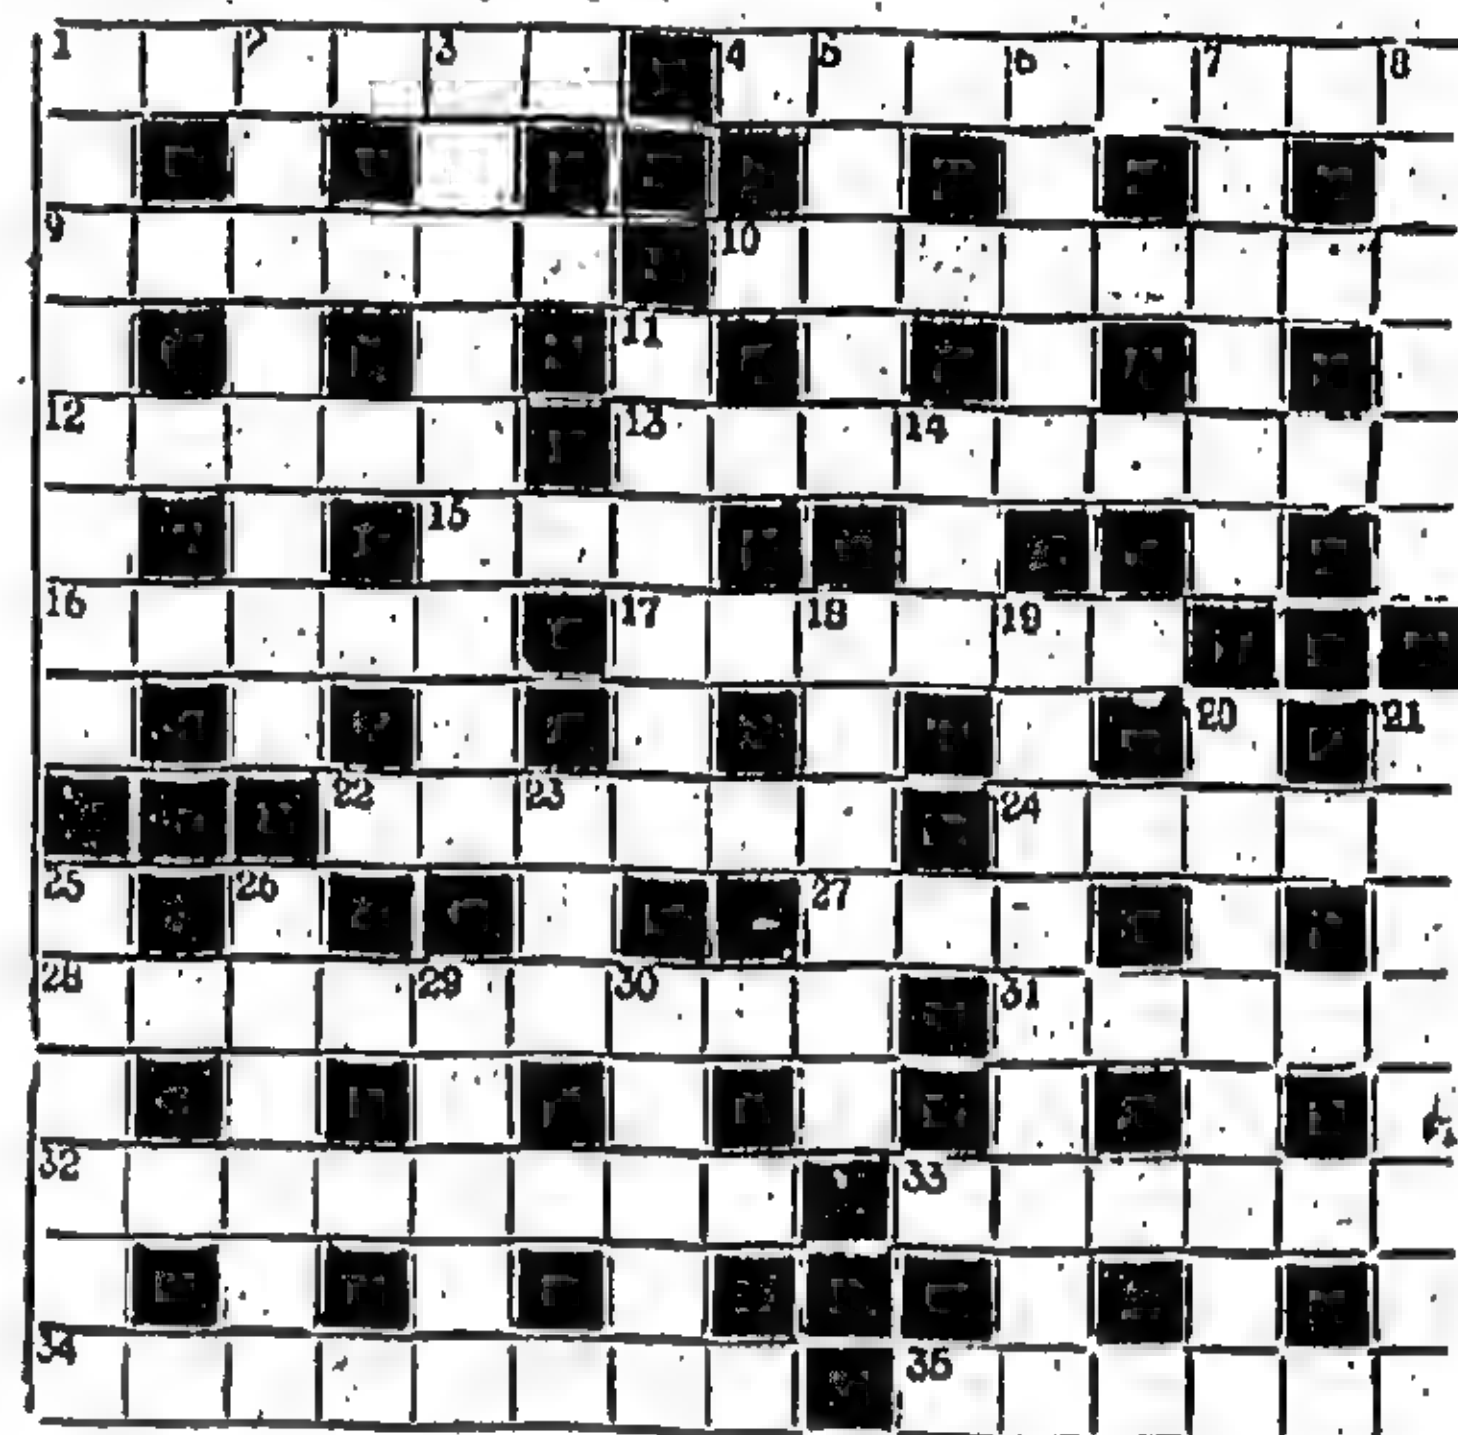

This "going-away" outfit that includes a topcoat in natural coloured linen and a short-sleeved dress of blue and white tie silk is sure to please any Summer bride.

CHAPTER XXI

The summer night was deadly still. Heat lightning flashed somewhere, far off to the north, and indoors the clink of crystal could faintly be heard, mingled with the sound of light, careless voices. Gypsy stood alone on the parapet, her apricot gown floating around her, her face ashen in the dimness. "Derek," she whispered faintly. "Derek!" She felt a gnawing nausea at the pit of her stomach. She was desperately afraid she was going to faint. And she continued to stand, as if rooted to the spot, frozen into a dreadful immobility. Perhaps not 30 seconds had passed, although to her these seconds ticked past like hours, before Hunt's tall form was silhouetted against the light and Hunt's agreeable voice said carelessly, "How're tricks, you two?"

"You two!" With the words Gypsy's immobility cracked and she rushed toward him as to a saviour, hysteria in her voice.

"Hunt—Hunt, he's gone!" "Hunt? Why, he—" "My God, you mean he's—" "He could not go on. He went to the rail, looked over. Gypsy flung her hands over her eyes.

"Come along!" He had her hand in his and they were in the candle-light room again and he was speaking, briefly, quietly. An accident, he said. If someone would come with him.

Lila had risen. Her face was chalk white above the black shadow of her gown. Marko's pearls lay on her throat.

"I was afraid of this," she said in a monotone. "I was afraid."

Chairs were pushed back, voices gabbled. Gypsy noticed dully that someone had overturned a glass of wine and that the stain was spreading over the face of the runner. Someone said, "Give her a drink, somebody. She needs it." Then she saw Davies holding a bottle of smelling salts to Lila's nostrils. One of the pretty young women fainted dead away and had to be carried out.

"It's got to be kept out of the papers," Lila was saying over and over, with deadly precision. As if thought Gypsy with scorn, as if that mattered now! Everyone would know what had happened. Marko went out with the other men; all the women were left alone. It was horrible. No one knew what to say or to do. "Derek—Gypsy simply could not let herself believe this had happened to Derek, with his strong, supple body and his crooked, faun-like smile. Why, less than two years ago he and Lila had made all sorts of preposterous vows to each other; to love, to cherish, to honour. What did it all mean? Was fidelity, after all, such an unimportant thing as people seemed to think nowadays? And had Derek perished because he had believed in it?

Every time the elevator door clanged they all turned their eyes fearfully in its direction. The sultry tension grew and deepened. "I'm afraid I'm going to scream," the girl in the ice-blue confided to Gypsy. "Somebody give me a cigarette, for heaven's sake."

"Ghastly affair, simply ghastly," whispered another. She looked absolutely shattered, but she kept renewing her complexion with fingers that shook a little.

"Why doesn't somebody do something?" Lila interrupted fretfully. "Where's Marko. Why did Marko have to run off and leave like that? Where is everybody?"

At length there were steps in the hall and the women looked gratefully, hopefully at Hunt as he came in. Gypsy felt she had never liked him better than she did at that moment. He seemed a very tower of strength.

He came toward them swiftly and said something in a low tone to Lila. She uttered one faint shriek and buried her face in her wadded handkerchief. Davies led her from the room.

Hunt faced the others. "He hit the parapet three storeys below," he told them gravely. "He's alive—but they think his back is broken."

If there is anything more irritating than a man's discovery, on avoiding the very jaws of temptation and rushing home to his wife, that the latter is nowhere to be found, I cannot think of it at the moment. Tom Weaver felt decidedly silly, distinctly priggish and finally, bitterly angry. Gypsy had said she would be home early; she had seemed genuinely to mean it. Here it was past midnight and she had not appeared.

Tom didn't like it. He prided himself on his modern attitude, especially toward his wife. She was a free agent, wasn't she? The days of the possessive husband were gone forever—and yet—and yet—

The telephone rang and he answered it in a cold, dispassionate voice. It was Gypsy and she was excited. Her voice sounded as though she had been crying. This made Tom angrier than ever. Fine goings on! His wife off—heaven knew where—with another man, upset by something. He couldn't hear half she said but he gathered she was on her way home. He scarcely answered her. The cold, bitterly stubborn mood which visited him infrequently was shutting down upon him. He could do nothing to conquer it.

He stalked into the bedroom, stared down at the sleeping baby. But the utter dependence and abandon of the curled small figure did not serve to dispel his gloomy temper. Although he knew it was not true, he told himself that Gypsy was neglecting the boy. She had no business rushing around as she did these days.

Presently he heard her key but he did not move. He continued to stand there, in the half light, sulking. But his ears were alert. He heard the swish of her draperies, the click of another lamp and Gypsy's half hysterical laugh which ended in a sob. She said something unintelligible to her escort.

"Lord, you'd think the fool would have sense enough to go home now," Tom thought grimly. He went out into the hall, caught at a disadvantage after his sojourn in the dark. Blinking like an owl, he thought, Gypsy said, "Oh, darling!" in what he considered almost an indecently emotional voice, but he did not respond; he felt himself aloof. He saw the fellow looking at him oddly and he nodded, feeling like a wooden man, stiff and inhuman.

"She's had a shock," he heard the other man say.

The muscles of Tom's mouth stretched themselves in what he hoped was a sarcastic smile. "Oh, has she?" he asked. "What was this all about and why didn't the chap go off and leave them?"

The story tumbled out. Gypsy told most of it, tearing at her thin handkerchief. Tom got grimmer and grimmer as it progressed. So this was the sort of mess they'd got themselves into, was it?

"It will look fine in the papers to-morrow, won't it?" he asked coldly. Gypsy's eyes flew to his face. Why was he taking it this way—he could see her asking herself the question.

He lighted a cigarette with fingers that shook a little.

"You shouldn't have gone in the first place," he said ugly. "You know I've been against that connection from the start. We don't belong in that crowd. You know it."

"Yes, but Tom."

He couldn't stop himself. He hated himself for going on like

With ushers dressed as storm troopers standing grimly in the aisles, and awastikas everywhere in evidence, New York's Madison Square Garden took on the appearance of a typical Nazi meeting when 20,000 Nazis and their sympathizers gathered to protest against the American boycott of German goods. A portion of the vast meeting, which was guarded by 700 police, is shown above.

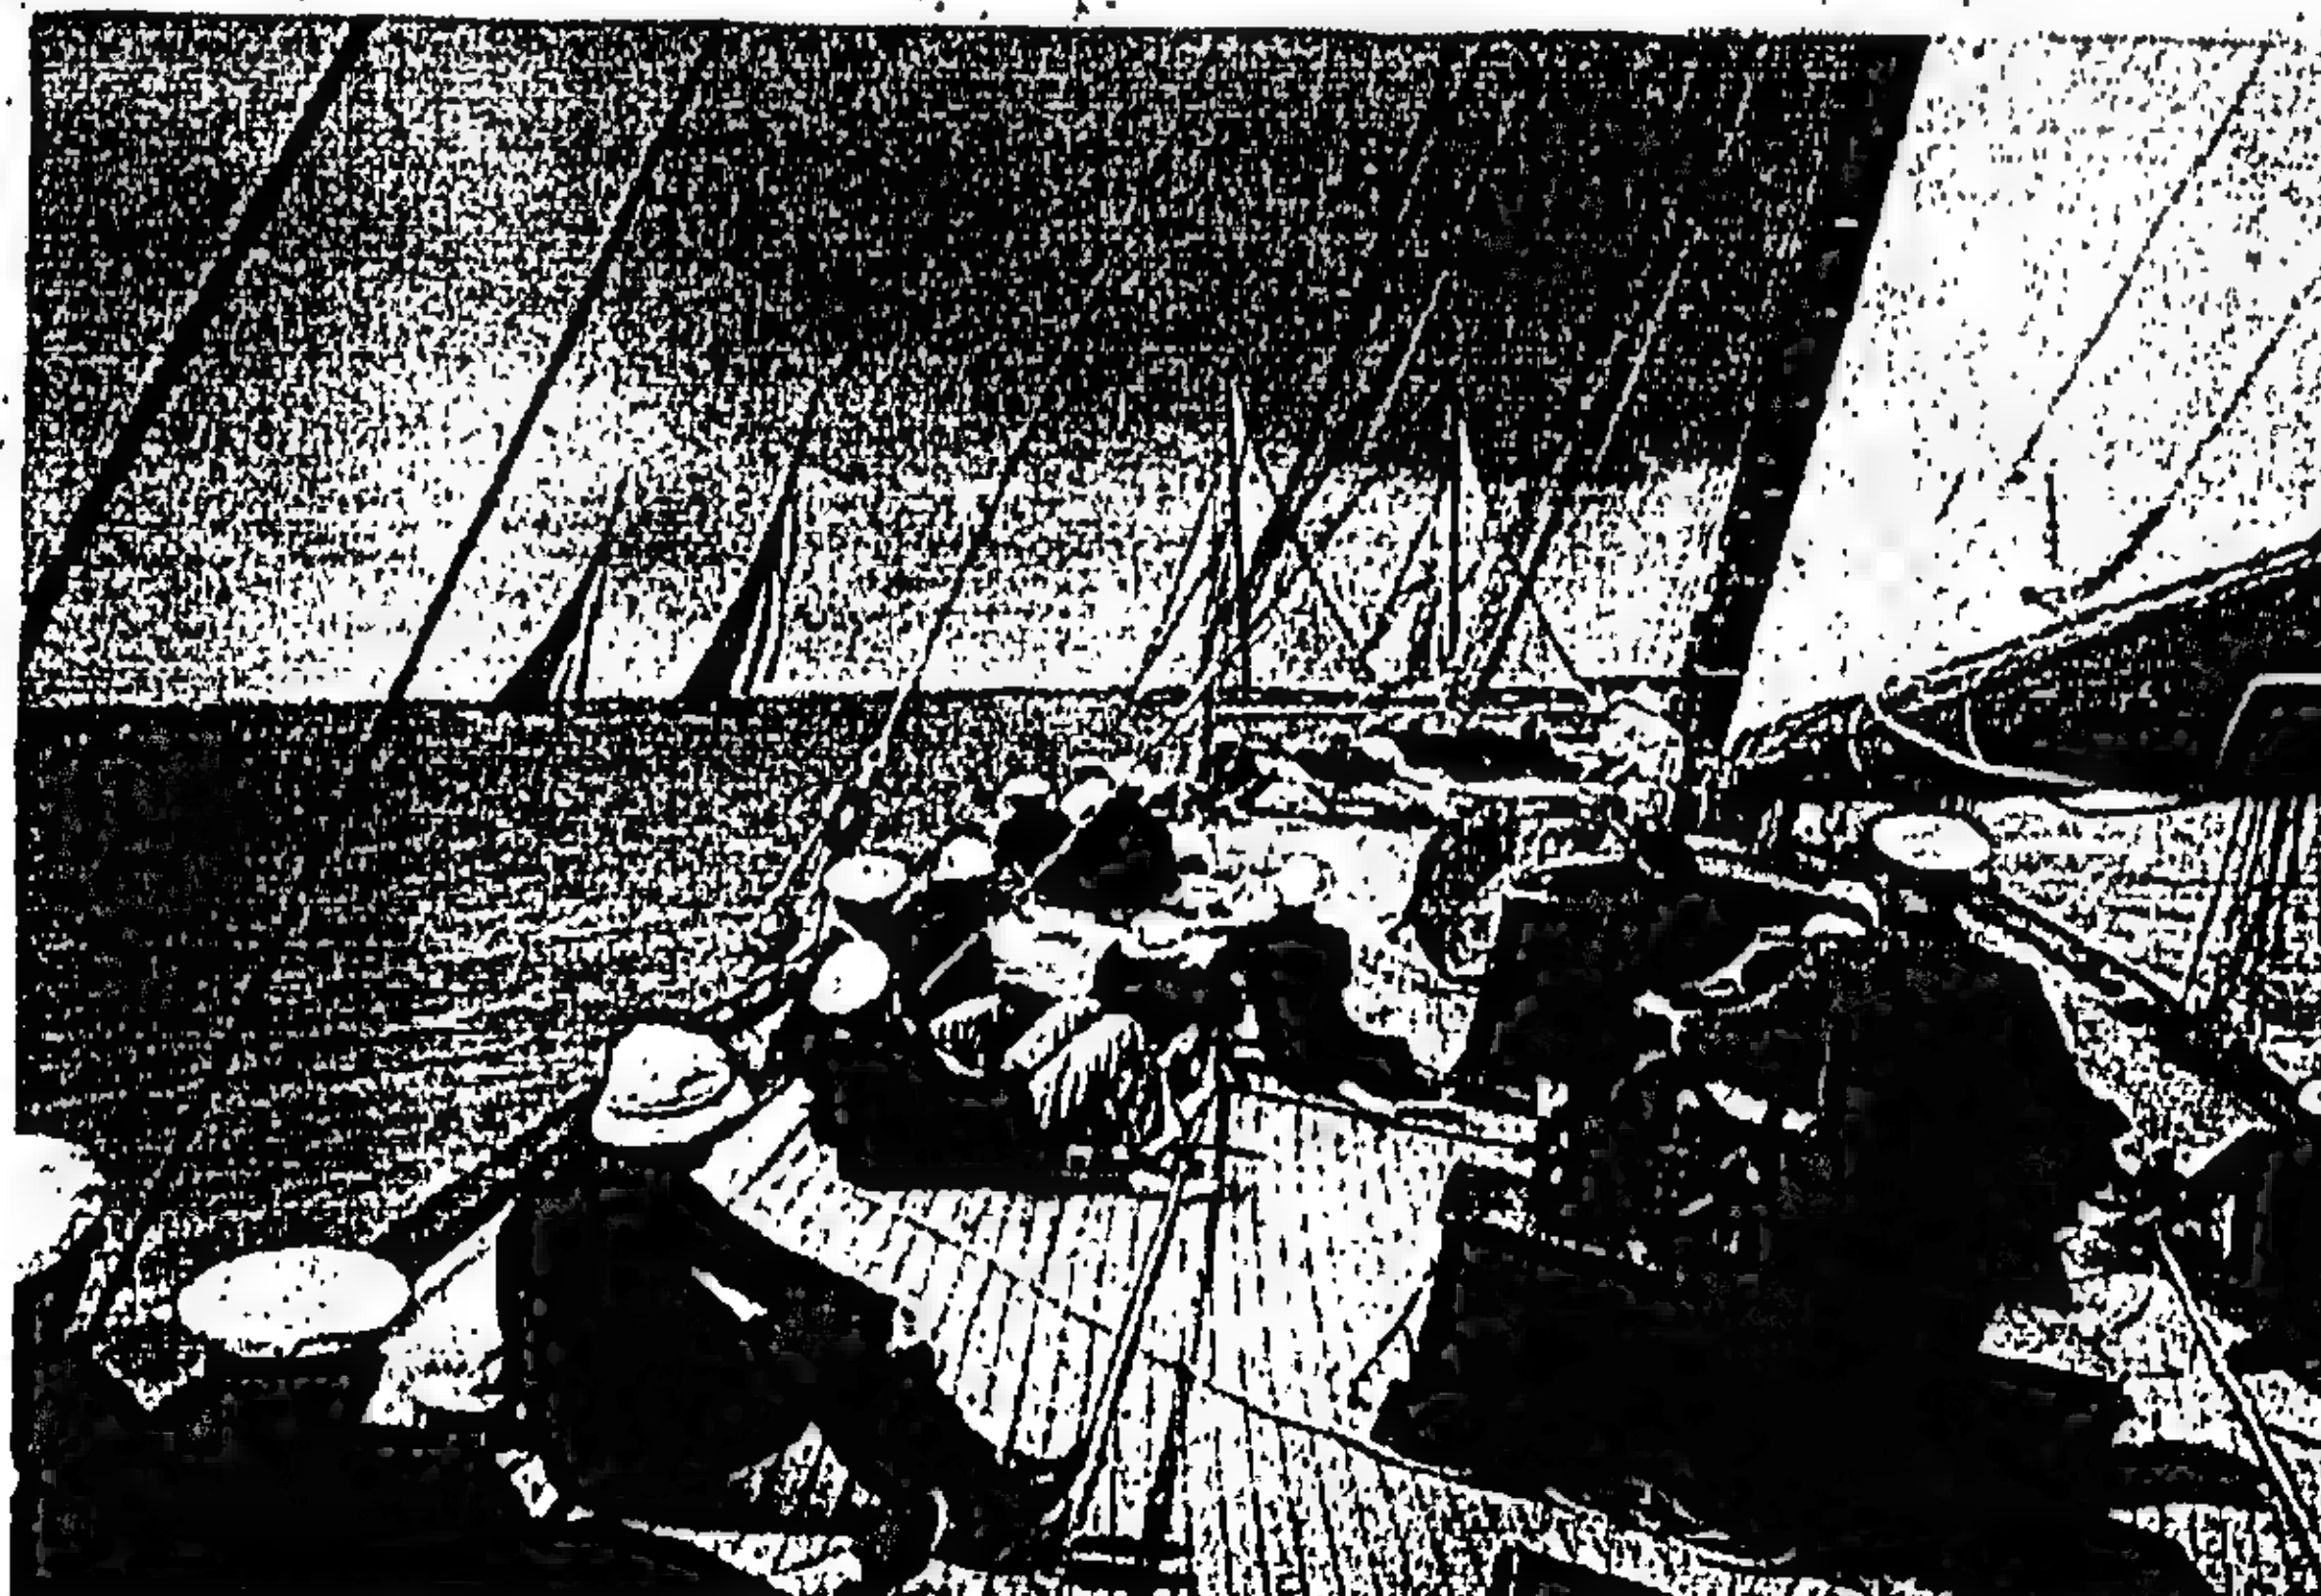

RESTORATION OF THE TRIANON AT VERSAILLES.—The inauguration of the "Hameau de la Reine" recently took place in the grounds of Versailles Palace. It is a farm which was built for Marie Antoinette and is composed of a set of small thatched cottages. The restoration was carried out with the Rockefeller Funds. The picture shows the main building.

YOUTH!
Girlie Complexions
Restored By Amazing
New Product

NO MORE WRINKLES
Prof. Dr. Seppel of the University of Vienna has started the world by an amazing discovery that lines and wrinkles are caused by a deficiency of blood in the skin.
The supply of the blood in the skin is governed by the nerves. When the nerves are weakened, the blood supply is cut off and the skin becomes dry and wrinkled.
Prof. Dr. Seppel has discovered a way to strengthen the nerves and restore the blood supply. His new product, Youth!, does this and restores the skin to its natural youthfulness. It is the only product of its kind in the world. It is the only product that restores the skin to its natural youthfulness.

we shall need during the next 100 years will not have much more in the second and third centuries, or possibly even with that of the

MOMENTOUS NAZI
CABINET MEETING

He was always looked upon as one of Herr Hitler's most able lieutenants, although he was side-tracked when he came almost a direct rival to Hitler in the race for power.

Strasser was 38 years of age and was a chemist in Munich.

INDISCRETIONS.

He was elected to the Reichstag as a member of the National-Socialist (Hitlerite) party in December, 1924, but he was early guilty of indiscretions. In spite of the close relations between the Hitlerites and the German Nationalist party, Strasser in October, 1929, made several violent attacks on Hitler, in connection with the referendum on the Young Plan. When threatened with proceedings for these alleged slanders, he took refuge behind his parliamentary immunity. Finally, however, the competent committee of the Reichstag deprived him of this protection and he was sentenced in 1930, to six months' imprisonment and a fine of $30.

Strasser and his brother Otto were the editors of a periodical entitled the "National-Socialist". The latter resigned from the Hitlerite party in July, 1930, and with other like-minded members who considered that it had become too "bourgeois", notably the notorious Major Buchrucker and Count Reventlow, founded a group of "Revolutionary National-Socialists".

Gregor, however, remained faithful to Hitler and had much to do with an attempt to heal the breach, which resulted in July, 1930, in an agreement to avoid putting up rival candidates and to support the elections. Strasser then presumed on his position with the result that he appeared less and less in the councils of the Party.

BRITAIN WATCHES
CLOSELYBut Sir John Simon
Is Cautious

London, July 2. The situation in Germany was the subject of a question in the House of Commons this afternoon, but the Foreign Secretary, in brief reply, said the recent occurrences there, however serious, were also dealt with in official communiques issued from Berlin and Munich.

His Majesty's Government, he added, were naturally following with close attention the course of events, but he was unable at present to make any further statement.

The latest official communique published in Berlin states that the "purge" was completed last night and that no further action in this direction will be taken. It is added that complete order reigns in the whole country.

WHAT IS PIRACY

COLONY CASE BEFORE PRIVY COUNCIL

London, July 2. The question as to whether actual robbery is an essential element in the crime of piracy was discussed by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to-day, with special reference to the trial of Chum Tam-kwong and twelve others at the Hongkong Sessions of February, 1931.

The Attorney-General appeared to support the view that actual robbery was not an essential element. Sir Leslie Scott, for the Colonial Secretary, argued the contrary.

Reference was made to the verdict against the accused and the Hongkong Full Court's decision that robbery was necessary to support a piracy conviction. The Attorney-General replying to Lord Tomlin said that their lordships' decisions would be binding in the Hongkong courts but they would be likely to adopt it. The decision would not effect the accused, who had been liberated.

The Attorney-General contended that the essential element of piracy was that acts were done without the authority of a sovereign state or a politically organised society and for private ends of robbery. Depredations were not a necessary ingredient of the offence.

The discussion was adjourned until to-morrow when it will continue before the Lord Chancellor and a court of five judges.—Reuter.

At the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, Chan Tai, a widow residing at 211, Shanghai Street, was fined $5,000, or 12 months' imprisonment, for having in her possession 600 taels of raw opium valued at $1,500. Inspector Humphreys prosecuted.

CORRESPONDENCE

Dog Muzzles

To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.

Sir.—In your leading article of yesterday, you point out the necessity of insisting upon an efficient type of muzzle. The only muzzle which effectually prevents the dog biting (and at the same time allows perfect freedom for breathing, drinking and perspiration) is the British pattern, i.e., the pattern which was made compulsory many years ago in the British Isles when rabies was prevalent. The British-type muzzle entirely encircles the whole head and nose of the dog and short of inserting a finger, there is no possibility of a bite.

Many of the muzzles now being worn by dogs are entirely useless, and must remain useless unless they are so cruelly tight that a dog cannot drink, breathe or perspire in comfort. In this connection I would like to emphasize the fact that a dog perspires only through his tongue, and therefore if his mouth is tightly strapped, misery will result, and quite possibly, disease. The British-type muzzle is both efficient and humane, and its use should be made compulsory.

I have recently purchased a muzzle of this type from Messrs. Lane, Crawford at a most reasonable figure. Should any reader wish for further information (or inspection of the muzzle) I should be most pleased to be of any assistance.

SAITO'S CABINET
TO RESIGN.FINAL MEETING TO BE HELD
TO-DAY

Tokyo, July 2. The Saito Cabinet is resigning en bloc to-morrow. This announcement was made by the Prime Minister, Viscount Saito, this morning, when he summoned Cabinet Ministers to a conference at his residence.

A final meeting of the Cabinet Council will be held to-morrow morning, when the Minister for Justice, Mr. Koyama will present full reports of the charges against Mr. Kuroda (former Finance Minister). Charges of graft and corruption against other high officials will also be outlined.—United Press.

News Forecast.

Tokyo, July 2. Afternoon special editions of the city newspapers forecast that the resignation of the Saito Cabinet will be submitted on Tuesday afternoon.

The resignation will follow immediately upon the submission, in the morning, of the Minister of Justice's report on the Kuroda scandal.

The report is expected to indicate graft of a widespread character, the extent of which was hitherto scarcely realised. It is said that one Cabinet member and one former Cabinet member are implicated.—Reuter.

WARSHIP SINKS.

FOUNDERS WHILE BEING
TOWED TO PORT

Tokyo, July 2. The Navy Office announced to-day that the destroyer Miyuki, damaged in a collision with the Inazuma, another destroyer, on the night of June 29, has sunk while being towed to Sasebo by another warship.

There were no further casualties. Reports of June 30 stated that the Miyuki and Inazuma collided head-on during night manoeuvres off Quelpart Island. They are 1,700 ton craft. Both, it was at first reported, had sunk.

Five lives were lost and many were seriously injured. The Inazuma, it is reported, sank immediately after the impact.—Reuter.

MONGOLIAN REPUBLIC.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATIONS
AT ULANBATE

Moscow, July 2. A delegation of high Soviet officials is leaving here this morning for Ulanbata, where they will attend the celebrations, starting on July 11, in connection with the anniversary of the founding of the Mongolian National Republic.

A delegation, which is led by M. Karakhan, formerly Soviet Assistant Foreign Commissioner and who has just been appointed Russian Ambassador to Turkey, includes several members of the Central Executive Committee and the Council of the Peoples' Commissariat.—Reuter.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

A Zane Grey picture means adventure, exciting action and the old West brought alive on the screen. It means scenery of incredible beauty and a story of stalwart, courageous men and women living the rugged lives of frontier days. And "Heritage of the Desert" which opens to-morrow at the Alhambra Theatre is not only a Zane Grey picture. It is an exceptionally interesting one. The film is introduced by Randolph Scott, a tall, handsome young newcomer, who brings to the role of Jack Hare unusual charm and promising ability. J. MacDonald, veteran character actor, gives his usual fine performance in the role of Adam Nash. He plays Adam with strength, kindness and gentleness and makes him an authentic portrait of the pioneer. Sally Blane is attractive as Judy, Gordon Westcott is excellent as Judge, Gordon Westcott is excellent as Judge, Gordon Westcott is excellent as Judge.

Some idea of the cultural and economic life of a small Mid-West town in the early 1900's is graphically reflected in the odd and unusual props used in Paramount's "One Sunday Afternoon", showing at the King's Theatre, with Gary Cooper in the starring role, and Fay Wray, Neil Hamilton, Frances Fuller and Roscoe Karns in the featured cast. Of chief interest are the vehicles in use before the automobile. These include surreys, buggies, hacks, buckboards, victorias, phaetons, tallyhoes, dog-carts and bull-wagons. The film, adapted from the Broadway stage hit of the same name, was written by James H. Hogan. It revolves around a small town dentist, played by Gary Cooper, who has spent a life-time yearning for a former sweetheart who married another. However, after twenty years, the clinging vine Gary is a successful dentist. What happens then, and how through her returning Gary is made to realize the fine qualities of his own pretty wife, gives a splendid, heart-touching finish to the picture.

"Blood Money"

Rowland Brown, author with Harold Long of "Blood Money", the 20th Century Picture, reveals conditions that exist in virtually every large American city. If it's true, it's something to think about. And whether truth or fiction, "Blood Money" is a rattling fast yarn with a wealth of suspense, excitement and drama of the headline thriller type. The workings of the bull bond racket; how criminals are set at large to continue their careers; how the efforts of district attorneys, judges and honest men are not at all enough to bring them in.

There are a lot of excellent characterizations in "Blood Money." George Bancroft gives such vitality and force to the character of Bill Bailey that you wonder how the scene has gotten along without him in all these months. This is his first picture under his new contract with Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck for 20th Century, releasing through United Artists. Frances Dee, Chick Chandler and Judith Anderson, Broadway stage stars, making her screen debut, play the other leading roles and do them splendidly. Miss Anderson should find a definite niche in pictures for her histrionic talents and her outstanding personality. "Blood Money" is the new attraction at the Alhambra Theatre and will more than please the thrill-seeker.

Tom Mix in "The Fourth Horseman" Tom Mix is coming—smashing, fighting his way through six reels of exciting film that Universal has named "The Fourth Horseman" will be showing at the Oriental Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday will be the scene of the activities and educated Tony, Margaret Lindsay, Fred Kohler and Raymond Hatton are right along in the cast to help the festivities. The story, by Nina Wilcox Putnam, concerns a beautiful Canadian girl who finds herself on the verge of being cheated out of an entire town in real estate—when Texas Tom Mix comes along to make it interesting for the bad men who plan to do the trick. Hamilton MacFadden, the well known Fox director, was borrowed by Universal especially to hold the reins on this Mix thriller. Dan Clark, the photographic expert of the outdoor films, handled the cameras.

"The Way to Love"

Something brand new under the filmological sun, "Rhythmic Photography", features the opening of Maurice Chevalier's "The Way to Love" which is coming on Sunday to the King's Theatre. For the first five minutes of the first reel, characters, settings, voices and natural actions, move rhythmically to the lilting tones of "I'm a Lover of Paris" a song microphone the discontent of the average person. Beginning with an operatic aria sung by an indigent Paris street singer, twenty characters—luteer, fisherman, et al—flash on the screen and fade out in a unique phantasmagoria of musical and camera tricks. Ralph Ringer, author of "Mountain Low" and other popular song hits wrote the music and Leo Robin the lyrics for this unusual opening. "The Way to Love" is a story of Paris, a romance between a tourist guide and a street gamin, played by Maurice Chevalier and Ann Dvorak, respectively. Others in the cast are Edward Everett Horton, Nina Westman, Blanche Frederick, Nydia Westman and Norman Taurag. It was directed by Norman Taurag.

"Men in White", now at the Queen's Theatre, is significant, substantial fare. It is an excellently mounted piece of work, boasting all-round competence and sincerity and a credit, individually and collectively, to every one concerned in its composition. The play has been heralded on Broadway this season as an earnest and authentic sign of a clan heretofore unexploited in the theatre—men of the medical profession. Clark Gable, as Dr. Ferguson, surpasses any characterization he has ever essayed. Jean Hersholt is unforgettable as the eminent Dr. Hochberg, sage mentor, solicitor only of the career for the younger man, utterly refusing to countenance any social or domestic infringement. Myrna Loy, the one character representing the detached lady, competes with Dr. Hochberg in outliving Ferguson's future, but her plans are less than a very much in evidence, and enables her to make a Laura a very commanding personage. Otto Kruger contributes an incisive stroke of dramatic strategy as Dr. Levine, the thwarted, disillusioned scientist. If our moderns entertain any illusions of heroism, then Elizabeth Allan's personification of the intelligent, knowing little nurse who took love where she wanted it, regardless, and paid unflinchingly for her recklessness, will linger with us for a long time.

MEXICO ELECTION.

GOVERNMENT NOMINEE IS PRESIDENT

Mexico City, July 2. Senator Lazaro Cardenas, the Government Party nominee for the Presidency of Mexico, was overwhelmingly elected to-day.

His only rival, Senator Alberto Tejedo, has charged that there was corruption and dishonesty in the victors' campaign, and that 200 of his supporters were imprisoned on one pretext and another during the campaigning.—United Press.

SOVIET PROTEST.

RESENT ADVICE TO RAILWAY
GUARDS

Moscow, July 2. The Soviet Consul-General at Harbin has been instructed to make representations to the Japanese diplomatic body against the reported editorial in the Harbin Times which admonishes the guards of the Chinese Eastern Railway to shoot all Communists and Soviet citizens near the railway who appeared to be suspicious characters.—United Press.

TUESDAY, JULY 3, 1934.

THE MUI-TSAI STATISTICS

Official statistics in regard to the mui-t sai system show that whereas in 1929 there were 4,299 names on the register, at the end of last year the number had been reduced to 2,726. To those unacquainted with the facts, it would appear that the total disappearance of the system from the Colony will be only a matter of a few years, since last year revealed a reduction of well over four hundred mui-t sai. The position is not, however, quite so simple as that. Actually, the official figures have very little real value. They start out on the assumption that the only mui-t sai in the Colony when registration was introduced four years ago were those actually registered, and the same idea is apparent in the statements regarding the reduction which has since been recorded. Actually, all that can be stated is that there were 4,299 on the register on December 31st, 1929, and 2,726 on December 31st, 1933. In other words, of the number originally registered 1,573 have since disappeared from the register either through leaving the Colony, by restoration to relatives, or as the result of marriage. It is safe to assume that only a small percentage of the mui-t sai in the Colony in 1929 were registered, and that many more have since arrived here. No check can be kept on these latter, by reason of the fact that there have been no fresh registrations during the past four years. The ban on the engaging of mui-t sai other than those who were in employment in 1929 does not mean that the only mui-t sai now in the Colony are those whose names appear on the register. There must be a constant coming and going of unregistered mui-t sai, of which it is impossible to keep track. The prosecutions undertaken from time to time only touch the fringe of the problem, although in course of time the knowledge that the system is illegal in Hongkong will doubtless gain wider currency and some impression be made on the continuance of the system locally. But the process must by the very nature of things be a very slow one. Within the limits set by the staff available for anti-mui-t sai work, and in view of the enormous difficulties presented, a really useful and beneficial contribution is being made to the solution of what is an immense problem, but nothing is to be gained by shutting our eyes to the fact that the system aimed at will persist for many long years, whether the local register shows one entry or a thousand.

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE GERMAN SCENE

It is now possible to get a closer glimpse of the German picture. The frightfulness of the declaration of Brown Army lieutenants, guilty of little more in most cases than an overbearing sense of their own importance, itself an attitude induced by the duties demanded of them in summary disciplining of the German people, stands out more sharply. The first-glance verdict, that this Hitler coterie were struck by moral panic, requires little amendment. What further emerges emphasises the precariousness of Herr Hitler's position. Now political upheavals may be confidently expected, for it is impossible to believe that such violence as swept Germany during the week-end can ever be anything but, in the end, self-destructive.

THE CHOICE

Beneath the relatively calm surface intrigue will continue to go on between Nazi leaders and Nazi factions and between the Nazis and powerful and exceedingly patriotic German groups, which are not Nazis, but which, for the moment, have been compelled to toe the line. Nothing is more obviously inevitable. The instincts of self-preservation compel a one-way decision, complete surrender of fear to discretion, or active working for the downfall of Hitler.

DISARMING THE STORM-TROOPS

The most significant of all comments on the situation comes from Herr Victor Lutze, new chief of staff of the Storm Troops. The main task now, he says, is to build up the Storm Troops as a "purely political" organisation, implying abandonment of the military aspects of the organisation. It implies, too, fear in Nazi circles of the instrument of their own creation, a weapon intended to guarantee continuity of power. No attempt is now made to deny that Hitler can no longer count upon the entire corps of the Brown Shirts. This private army includes extremely radical elements, and it is hardly possible that all have been roped in, despite the hundreds of arrests.

THE REICHSWEHR

Herr Hitler, Goering and General von Blomberg, Reichswehr commander-in-chief, recently went for a cruise in a German warship. What they discussed is a secret they kept to themselves. Nevertheless, the little birds of the Unter den Linden are whispering that the chief topic was the modus operandi in the event of such a development as marked the week-end. Is Herr Hitler now looking to the Reichswehr to maintain order?

THE FUTURE

A week ago an acknowledged expert on Germany foreshadowed the collapse of the Hitler regime within a fortnight, naming the suspect von Papen as the next Chancellor. The prediction was not entirely a product of a vivid imagination. Piecing together apparently ill-assorted fragments produces clear hints that the prophecy may not be entirely falsified by the Hitler swoop. Reliance on the Reichswehr is in itself highly dangerous to a Nazi looking for power. And for this reason. No matter what may be the cause of a Hitler downfall, his regime would almost certainly be followed by a military dictatorship with Monarchist leanings. Von Blomberg and the ex-Crown Prince prevented Hindenburg from resigning. Does that mean nothing? Or is the army prepared? Hitler would probably remain as a sort of figurehead for a while. But the military group would actually control the destinies of the country, until out of the resultant chaos there emerged a Restoration or a Communist State. The national dementia that has permitted the intolerances of the Hitler regime may only too readily be diverted to other and perhaps more cataclysmic channels.

NATIONS AND THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT

By R. J. CRUIKSHANK

THE biggest man in the Roosevelt Administration after the President himself, is Mr. Henry Wallace, the Secretary of Agriculture. He grows steadily in stature. His speeches—thoughtful, temperate, philosophic—have a quality all their own. He has no small change of conversation. In private life he appears a buttoned-up, almost dear man. But on the platform he conveys the impression of a profoundly honest man thinking aloud.

The average Briton would recognise and appreciate his quality at once. In physical appearance, as in the cast of his mind, he is at one with those earnest, ambitious and tireless Scots who have made so great a contribution to the material and moral strength of the Empire. He is the Shorter Catechist of the Administration, the custodian of its conscience.

It is appropriate that it should have been left to Mr. Wallace to expose the religious basis of the New Deal. His new book, "Statesmanship and Religion," is a valuable guide to what is happening in the United States to-day. It shows the great moral forces that lie behind the "Roosevelt Revolution."

For Mr. Wallace represents the Puritan tradition at its finest. There are many thousands of men of his type in this country, particularly in the Middle-West and Western States. Their old faith has been modified by contact with the machine age, but their fundamental attitude to life remains profoundly serious, and they still believe in the supremacy of the moral law in the Universe. They are more humane, more kindly than their ancestors, but they retain the old, grave sense of man's high destiny and urgent responsibility.

Mr. Wallace is an interesting example of a Puritan who has abandoned the dogmas of his people, and, driven forward by an inner necessity of his nature, is seeking a new religion which may be described as "politics transfigured by divinity." He believes that the orthodox Protestantism in which he was grounded is inadequate to the needs of the modern world.

This faith, he says, was enormously useful in building up America, for out of the proud and rugged individualism which it inspired, the pioneers carved a nation from the wilderness. It was not surprising that these hardy fighters turned to the Psalms of David for spiritual meat and drink. Calvinism made a virtue of work. So did Lutheranism. So did Wesleyanism. And as hard work and careful saving were essential to the existence of the country, these faiths were of the highest social value.

The pioneers lived in an economy of scarcity. But to-day we have come to the economy of abundance. "Because we have not learned how to live with abundance," writes Mr. Wallace, "men go hungry and ragged. Because our great business institutions saved too strenuously in the fat years, and accumulated huge corporate surpluses at the cost of their workers' purchasing power, demand lagged far behind supply, depression came and men lost their jobs."

Mr. Wallace believes that laissez-faire and dog-eat-dog economics are the natural outgrowth of the old-fashioned religion. This loss of faith in orthodoxy, however, has only served to heighten his conviction in the complete economic rightness of the Old Testament prophets and of the Sermon on the Mount. It is noteworthy to find the most influential member of the President's Cabinet asserting:

"For nineteen hundred years it seemed that the Sermon on the Mount was economic nonsense. Now its realisation is not only possible, it is the only way out of chaos."

"The world is now ripe for a type of religion which is truly catholic in the original sense of the term. I wish that in some way it might be so universal as to embrace Buddhists, Mohammedans, Jews, Protestants and Catholics."

"It should be possible for the people in all these religions to have a fellow feeling for those who strive for the good life in the other religions."

It is no secret that the Secretary of Agriculture has always fought those influences in the Roosevelt Administration which have tended towards a narrow nationalism, but in "Statesmanship and Religion" he comes out into the open against them with trenchant force. He writes:

"It is true that we can have a very high standard of living if we develop a spirit and economic policy of intense nationalism such as has been followed by certain countries. Spiritually we shall have been defeated, indeed, and shall have accepted a pagan nationalism as our God."

"From the religious point of view, I feel confident that we must expand our vision to embrace the far-off countries and must take steps to adjust our economic affairs so that we are benefiting the far-off countries at the same time that we are benefiting the rank and file of our own people."

"A modern Isaiah, seeing the possibilities of modern transportation and communication and observing the national barriers imposed by the nations against each other since the war would cry out against international injustices. He would go to the people of the different nations with his message and call for a New Deal among nations."

"Religion to my mind is the most practical thing in the world. In so saying, I am not talking about church-going, or charity, or any of the other outward manifestations of what is popularly called religion. By religion I mean the force which governs the attitude of men in their inmost hearts towards God and their fellow-men."

"To-day I am glad to say that economics, science and religion are all re-examining the facts under pressure from the common man who is appalled by the tragic nonsense of misery and want in the midst of tremendous world stocks of essential raw materials."

"Science has given us control over nature far beyond the wildest imaginings of our grandfathers. But unfortunately the religious attitude which produced such keen scientists and aggressive business men makes it impossible for us to live with the balanced abundance which is ours as soon as we are willing to accept it with clean, understanding hearts."

"To enter the Kingdom of Heaven brought to earth and expressed in terms of rich material life it will be necessary to have a reformation even greater than that of Luther and Calvin. I am

The Very Idea!

A BILLET DOUX

By George

A MONG our correspondents to-day we detected an unusual envelope, pink in colour and faintly scented. Altogether a quite uncommon member for our selection except that the name was spelt wrongly.

We opened it. It was from Bane-Awford who had used this novel disguise in an attempt to get us to read their monthly plea.

We appreciate enterprise, and throwing the envelope away to avoid misunderstandings, we opened the letter and read as under:

"Dear Sir or Madam,
We beg to draw your attention to our account amounting to $200 which, we think, might possibly have been overlooked by you. We should appreciate a settlement of this account with a view to keeping our books up to date. Thanking you in anticipation,
We are, Dear Sir or Madam,
TMR/MJ Yrs Fily.

The Editor being away there was practically nothing to do in the office, so we peeled off our jacket bearing Bane-Awford's name, took out our pen obtained at the same establishment and wrote the first number of that famous bundle of correspondence which stands now as our memorial to our fight against dictatorship.

Dear Bane-Awford (we began spiritedly) Re your communication TMR/MJ (which we take it stands for Trumpeter Major though this item is not charged to our account) we are deeply hurt at being again obliged to point out to you that our name and your rendering of it are still far from unanimous and though admitting that the fault may be ours, it is such a longstanding one that we trust you will find it possible to fall into line with Somerset House and our intimate friends by addressing us in future as Smythe-byllintone. Smythe was our grandfather's name and he left such a meagre local estate that we are loath to give up anything to which he had the remotest legal claim. In case your shroff should be obliged to call upon us personally, the name is pronounced Smythe-byllintone as spell and the hyphen is omitted in ordinary conversation.

As regards the comparatively small matter of initials we feel that it is wasting your time and ours to reiterate that A.J.M. does not stand for JAM; does not indicate Maj. of army rank, and is not an abbreviation of the girl's name.

However if you could convince your clerk that we are absolutely sure of our Christian names and can attest them if necessary with a birth certificate, we feel sure that he could be prevailed upon to see eye to eye with us in a matter which is as embarrassing for our wife as it is painful to the memory of Grandpa from whom we also inherit our initials.

Trusting that we have dealt fully with the matters raised by you in your charming letter of yesterday, we close on a note of optimism as regards the 1934 industrial outlook and express the sincere hope that your esteemed firm will go on from prosperity to prosperity in the golden days which we see just beyond the horizon.

We have the pleasure to remain,
Dear Bane-Awford,
Yours respectfully,
A. J. M. SMYTHE-BYLLINTONE.
A.D./1934.

R.I.P.

Joejobhoy is dead... is dead...
No more with light and airy tread
Will he traverse our pages
Whilst taking out—the fatuous
His dainty little looking glass
At far too frequent stages.
And Madge? That darling of the Penk, Uncouthly handsome; masculine-ly chic.
Will flirt with us no more:
No left her spread out on the grass
With skewers through her hair
made fast—
Her Soul has Gone Before.
How sad it is that Love's sweet
way
Should always make the woman
pay
For every situation!
For though dear Madge got off
half-way
She paid for both and lost the day,
A bitter combination!
But when young Reg's youth is spent,
To his first love he may relent
And bring her consolation.
And if Madge then applies her too
Be sure it's 'cause she loves him
so
And not for castigation!

"This would be perfect if we only had a murder mystery to read."

AMERICAN SILVER AIMS

SIXTY-FIVE CENTS AN OUNCE?

NATIONALISING BANKING?

Washington, July 2.

A steady rise in silver prices is predicted by close observers of the Administration's policies. The Administration has in mind a programme of taxation on finance and prices. This taxation is being studied to provide a plan to yield larger taxes, to support the continued heavy relief expenditures.

Banking and credit questions are being considered, with the idea of a thorough reconstruction of the banking system. The control of credit is not likely to be left entirely in private hands. No change in price objectives is contemplated by the Administration, which is still anticipating a return to the 1924-26 range.

The Treasury is making no definite commitments on silver purchases, but is carrying out the intent of the silver legislation and is likely to continue an active buyer. Expectation is that the Treasury will put gradually silver up to about 65 cents an ounce.—Seam, Culbertson and Fritz.

PROMISSORY NOTE OR NOT?

LEAVE TO APPEAL GRANTED

Leave to appeal was granted by the Full Court this morning to M. Y. San & Co. (1927), Ltd., 98 Queen's Road Central, in an action which concerns a large number of creditors.

Judgment was given by the Pulane Judge, Mr. Justice Jacks, against the company last month when they were sued by Li Hong-ping, married woman, of 63, Bonham Road, for $826 balance due from the company as makers of a promissory note dated September 15, 1928, and payable within four years.

Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Mr. C. E. Lowe, of Dennys & Co., appeared for appellants and said his application was based on a question of law.

The appellant's company was formed in 1927 to take over the assets and liabilities of the old company which was then in liquidation. The old company, the new company, and the creditors made an arrangement whereby the appellants were to give fully paid up ordinary shares to the unsecured creditors to the extent of 40 per cent. of their claims as allowed by the liquidator; and, after paying dividends on preference shares, should pay another 40 per cent. out of the company's profits each year.

In their defence to respondent's claim, the appellants had said that the document on which she claimed was not a promissory note; and, secondly, that if it were held to be a promissory note, it should be considered in conjunction with the deed of arrangement, and defendants should not be held liable on the ground that no profits had been made since 1932.

The learned Judge had held that the document was a promissory note and appellant submitted that this was not correct; that his construction of the document was wrong in law; and that he overlooked entirely the source from which the company were to make the payments.

The Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. Macgregor, said he and the Pulane Judge concurred in granting leave to appeal.

AXE ATTACK IN ABERDEEN

ASSAILANT SENT TO PRISON

Passing sentence of three months' hard labour on Lo Kwai, a boat-builder, of the Aberdeen district, on a charge of wounding a woman and her husband with an axe, Mr. Hamilton this morning said he took a very serious view of the case.

Sub-inspector Armit stated that defendant worked for complainants for twenty years up to the end of November last year, when owing to the depression, work ceased. Defendant still had $8.50 owing to him up to May this year. The couple were unable to pay and defendant found work of his own. While at meals yesterday morning, defendant was told to finish his food and go to work. He replied that he did not want to go to work and asked for his money. Complainants said they could not pay immediately but could do so in two days' time, whereupon defendant picked up an axe and "slashed" at the woman and when her husband intervened, he also was attacked.

A FELONY?

On a charge of entering the first floor of No. 231 Hollywood Road, with intent to commit a felony, Cheung Wai, 24, unemployed, was fined $10 or fourteen days' hard labour in default, by Mr. Macfadyen this morning. Defendant was found sleeping in a cubicle of the floor which was vacant.

MISS YVONNE SHENTON SUMMONED

Thirty Miles An Hour In Whitfield

TRAFFIC CASES

A plea of guilty to a technical offence put forward by Mr. W. A. Mackinlay, of Messrs. Deacons, on behalf of Miss Yvonne Shenton, on a summons for speeding in a controlled area, in Whitfield, was not accepted by Mr. Hamilton in the Central Magistracy this morning.

The defendant, who is the daughter of the Hon. Sir William and Lady Shenton, was not present in Court. Mr. Mackinlay stated that she was in hospital.

The summons alleged that Miss Shenton travelled through Whitfield at a speed of 30 miles per hour during the tiffin hour.

Mr. Mackinlay: I have not seen Miss Shenton. I have only received very short instructions and they are to plead guilty.

His Worship:—It is a serious business.

Mr. Mackinlay:—I should like to know what was the danger. I don't want to make any admissions on Miss Shenton's behalf, except to plead guilty to a technical offence.

Traffic-inspector Nicoll stated that Miss Shenton drove between Ah King's slipway and the Whitfield market.

His Worship:—It is obviously dangerous. I won't accept a plea of guilty to a technical offence.

Mr. Mackinlay:—I think it would be fairer to Miss Shenton if I could get further instructions. His Worship said he was prepared to adjourn the case for the defendant to attend.

Mr. Mackinlay:—My instructions are to plead guilty to the offence as charged.

Defendant's record was clear and a fine of $10 was imposed.

DANGEROUS DRIVING.

Lam Man, driver of motor lorry No. 2221, was fined $15 for dangerous driving in Hollywood Road.

Traffic-sergeant McInnis: The defendant was speeding at 15 miles per hour, and there were about a thousand people walking through the street. It was a case of every man for himself.

"OFFENCE" JUSTIFIED:

Leung Mun, driver employed by Mr. G. G. N. Tinson, of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Master, was summoned before Mr. Hamilton for passing a moving motor-lorry in the Whitfield controlled area on June 6.

Appearing on the defendant's behalf, Mr. Tinson tendered a plea of guilty to a technical offence. The road, he said, was absolutely clear and he pleaded guilty to an offence "which we were perfectly justified to commit". The lorry, loaded with sand, was travelling at no more than eight miles per hour. It occurred at the far end of Whitfield.

Defendant had a very good record.

Damages of $9,676.76 were granted to Messrs. L. M. de Rocha & Co., of 6, Des Voeux Road Central, by the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. Macgregor, sitting at the Supreme Court this morning.

MOTOR WEIGHT ORDER

RESULTS IN GREATER REVENUE

Information secured from Police Headquarters this morning was to the effect that the object of the new order requiring motor-car owners to furnish certificates of the weight of their vehicles on re-licensing is to guarantee the payment of the correct licence fees.

It was pointed out that the information given by manufacturers of cars in many cases under-states the actual weights, with the result that in some cases the appropriate licence fees have not been paid.

As the result of the new requirement, calling for certificates of weight, the police state that already the revenue secured from licences shows an increase of something like $7,000.

"BUNNY" AUSTIN SHOULD HAVE BEATEN SHIELDS

MISSSES TWO CHANCES

WITH TWO MATCH POINTS ON SERVICE

FRED PERRY POOR

London, July 2. It is now revealed that "Bunny" Austin had wonderful opportunities of beating Frank Shields in the Wimbledon quarter-final, but that the American's great fighting spirit pulled him out of two extremely tight corners.

In the final set Austin was within two points of the match on his own service at 5-4, and then collapsed.

At one stage he took a 3-1 lead in the third set.

According to a Reuter message, Austin was superb in the first two sets which he won at 6-4, 6-2, leaving Shields dazzled with his driving and volleying. The Englishman gave every indication of another straight sets victory when he went to 3-1 in the third set, but Shields staged an amazing rally. He speeded up the play and forced Austin into errors.

Saving the set at 7-5, he quickly captured the fourth at 6-2, Austin obviously saving himself for the bigger effort.

It looked as though Austin would yet win. He went to a 5-4 lead in the final set and had 30-love on his own service.

Then Shields scored points with brilliant drop shots, and in the final game, used the Englishman to win a dramatic victory.

Up to this match, Austin had not conceded a single set in any of his encounters at the current Wimbledon meeting, and throughout played well enough to justify the hope that he would win the singles championship.

PERRY UNCOMFORTABLE.

Fred Perry made his way into the semi-finals at the expense of George M. Lott, but he wasn't anywhere near his best, and won more as a result of superior stamina than on stroke play.

Many of Perry's shots were poor and he often revealed faulty judgment. Lott actually led 5-2 in the fourth set, but Perry held the rallies and finally the American was so tired that he could hardly wield the racket.

The complete scores of the quarter-finals were:

F. X. Shields (America) beat H. W. Austin (Britain) 4-6, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3, 7-5.

J. Crawford (Australia) beat L. Stoenen (America) 7-5, 2-6, 7-5, 6-0.

S. B. Wood (America) beat V. G. Kirby (S. Africa) 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0.

Characteristic study of Frank X. Shields, conqueror of H. W. Austin in the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon championship.

Draw For Women's Last Eight

ENGLISH PAIR MAY CLASH

London, July 2.

The draw for the last eight in the women's singles championship at Wimbledon show the following pairing.

Miss Jacobs (U.S.) v. Fr. Aussem (Germany)

Miss S. Palfrey (U.S.) v. Mme. Mathieu (France)

Miss Round (Britain) v. Mile. Payot (Switzerland)

Miss Scriven (Britain) v. Miss J. Hartigan (Australia)

This suggests that if both Miss Round and Miss Scriven survive they will clash in the semi-final, and thus ensure British representation in the final—British Wire- less.

E. J. Perry (Britain) beat G. M. Lott (America) 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 10-8.—Reuter.

ALL-AMERICAN FINAL?

There is a distinct possibility of an all-American final as Queen's Club, although it is somewhat improbable. The draw would seem to indicate that Crawford will oppose Shields in the semi-final and Perry will meet Sydney Wood.

A Crawford-Perry final would be one of the greatest attractions Wimbledon has had for years.

The committee's seeding was vindicated by the entry of six of the eight "seeded" players into the last eight. Only de Stefani and Von Cramm failed to make the grade, and the latter was unexpectedly beaten in the fourth round by V. G. Kirby of South Africa.

New York, July 2.

Another great piece of pitching by Lefty Gomez saw Boston Red Sox blanked out by the Yankees to-day, and Gomez figure in his thirteenth win of the season.

Washington Senators kept pace with a comfortable win over the Atlantic, but Detroit and Cleveland Indians halved a double header.

The Giants scored another win, but St. Louis Cardinals sustained a further reverse, this time at the hands of Chicago Cubs.

WINNING POSITION FOR AUSTRALIANS

Surrey Again Dismissed Very Cheaply

London, July 2.

Surrey are as good as beaten. The Australians, although themselves unable to score with freedom to-day, had no difficulty in establishing themselves in a winning position.

Having dismissed Surrey for 175, they went on to score, 251, Ponsford leading the way with 85, assisted by Kippax with 50.

Surrey again fared badly at the wicket, Grimmett's break bowling proving too good for them. They were sent back for 184, Grimmett taking 6 for 33.

The Australians have only to score 103 to win.—Reuter.

MIDLAND LEAGUE OF 20 CLUBS

Norwich City One Of Them

The Midland Football League next season will consist of 20 clubs, for at the annual meeting in Peterborough, Norwich City, Peterborough, Grantham and Epsom were admitted, whilst York City withdrew.

Norwich City undertook to pay the hotel expenses of clubs who had to stay overnight, and also assist in the travelling expenses beyond the present area of the competition. It was announced that a new limited company had been formed at Peterborough, and that they had no connection with the old Peterborough and Fletton United.

It was decided to do away with the rule giving 5 per cent. of the gates to visiting clubs, which was adopted last season as an experiment.

At the annual meeting of the Birmingham Football League last month the resignation of Port Vale was accepted with regret. An application for membership by Carnarvon was unsuccessful.

After a resolution to restrict the membership to 18 clubs had been defeated, it was decided that the secretary should advertise for a suitable club to fill the vacancy, but should there be no applications, the League should carry on with 19 clubs.

K.C.C. Tennis Team Loses To Canton German Club

BODIKER IN WONDERFUL FORM AGAINST E. C. FINCHER

Miss Madge Griffiths Wins All Four Matches

(By "Veritas").

Week-end tennis trips to Canton by members of the Kowloon Cricket Club always mean something to be looked back upon with keen delight by the visitors; such was the case this last week-end when at the invitation of the Deutscher Garten Klub, the K.C.C., visited Tungshan, and engaged the German players in a series of tennis matches, and at the same time participated in a most enjoyable social programme.

The complete comfort and happiness of the visitors was the first consideration of the hosts, and in every respect cause was given for keen appreciation of the hospitality of the home club. In addition to which tennis, under ideal conditions, and providing keen, but the best type of friendly rivalry, made this one of the outstanding events in the annals of these inter-club tennis tournaments.

The Deutscher Klub deservedly carried off the tennis honours, finally winning by 15 matches to 10. The K.C.C. players found themselves at a slight disadvantage, but this in no way detracted from the merits of the home team's success.

BRILLIANT BODIKER.

Matches between Georg Bodiker, the club's champion, and one of Canton's leading exponents, and Teddy Fincher, K.C.C. idol, are always thoroughly enjoyed, providing as they do an entertaining spectacle.

Bodiker, reared on hard courts, is always 15 better when playing on this surface, and is one of the most difficult players in South China to beat under such conditions. It was therefore not surprising to see him beat Fincher in the much-anticipated singles. Nevertheless it was the finest display I have ever seen from Bodiker. Maintaining perfect control over his fast drives on both hands, he gained such absolute mastery of the situation that Fincher never looked likely to avert a straight sets defeat.

Teddy, of course, is not the same player on sand surface as on grass, but it needed a very good player to upset Bodiker on his form last Saturday. Bodiker was surprisingly good overhead and attacked the net with far more confidence than usual.

But it was his well laid baselino campaign which made it possible for him to win so comfortably. He made the absolute minimum of mistakes off the ground and obtained such pace from his drives, that Teddy had little chance of taking the net, being porgeed back and forced into defensive chop strokes.

K.C.C. LADIES ON TOP.

From the K.C.C. viewpoint, the most pleasing feature of the tennis was the success of their ladies. Miss Madge Griffiths figures in four official victories and one unofficial mixed doubles win.

It is doubtful if she has ever played better. Although on a strange court, she was steadiness personified and won her singles, and with Miss Mackenzie, the doubles, in convincing style.

Miss Mackenzie also did extremely well to take a match from Miss Lehmann, and also had a fair share in the doubles success. She discovered Mrs. Fischer on form when they met Sunday morning. Mrs. Fischer recovered amazingly well and eventually broke down Miss Mackenzie's steadiness.

That veteran player Charlie Watson of Canton proved far too wily for the younger members of the K.C.C. team, and he scored very clever singles victories against F. Zimmern and R. S. Capell. Furthermore he figured prominently in a mixed doubles success with Mrs. Fischer against S. A. Gray and Miss Mackenzie.

OVER "40" MATCHES.

Another tit-bit of the programme, the "over 40" singles and doubles encounters, was full of

A sensation was caused in the Open Lawn Bowls Championship yesterday afternoon, when L. R. Whant, of the Civil Service Cricket Club, defeated U. M. Omar, title holder in 1923 and 1931, and runner-up in 1920, by 21 shots to 20 in the second round on the Police Recreation Club green.

Omar, who defeated Whant in the first round of the championship in 1922, failed to score until the sixth head, gaining a single. On the eleventh head, Whant led by 12 shots to 3. Omar played very good bowls to take the lead at 17-18 on the 21st head and on the 24th head the score was 10-19. The Craggower player was within match, shot on the 25th head but failed to score the necessary point, and Whant gained a two on the 26th head to win the match.

The green played heavy on the first few heads but became faster as the game progressed.

BASTO DEFEATS POOLER.

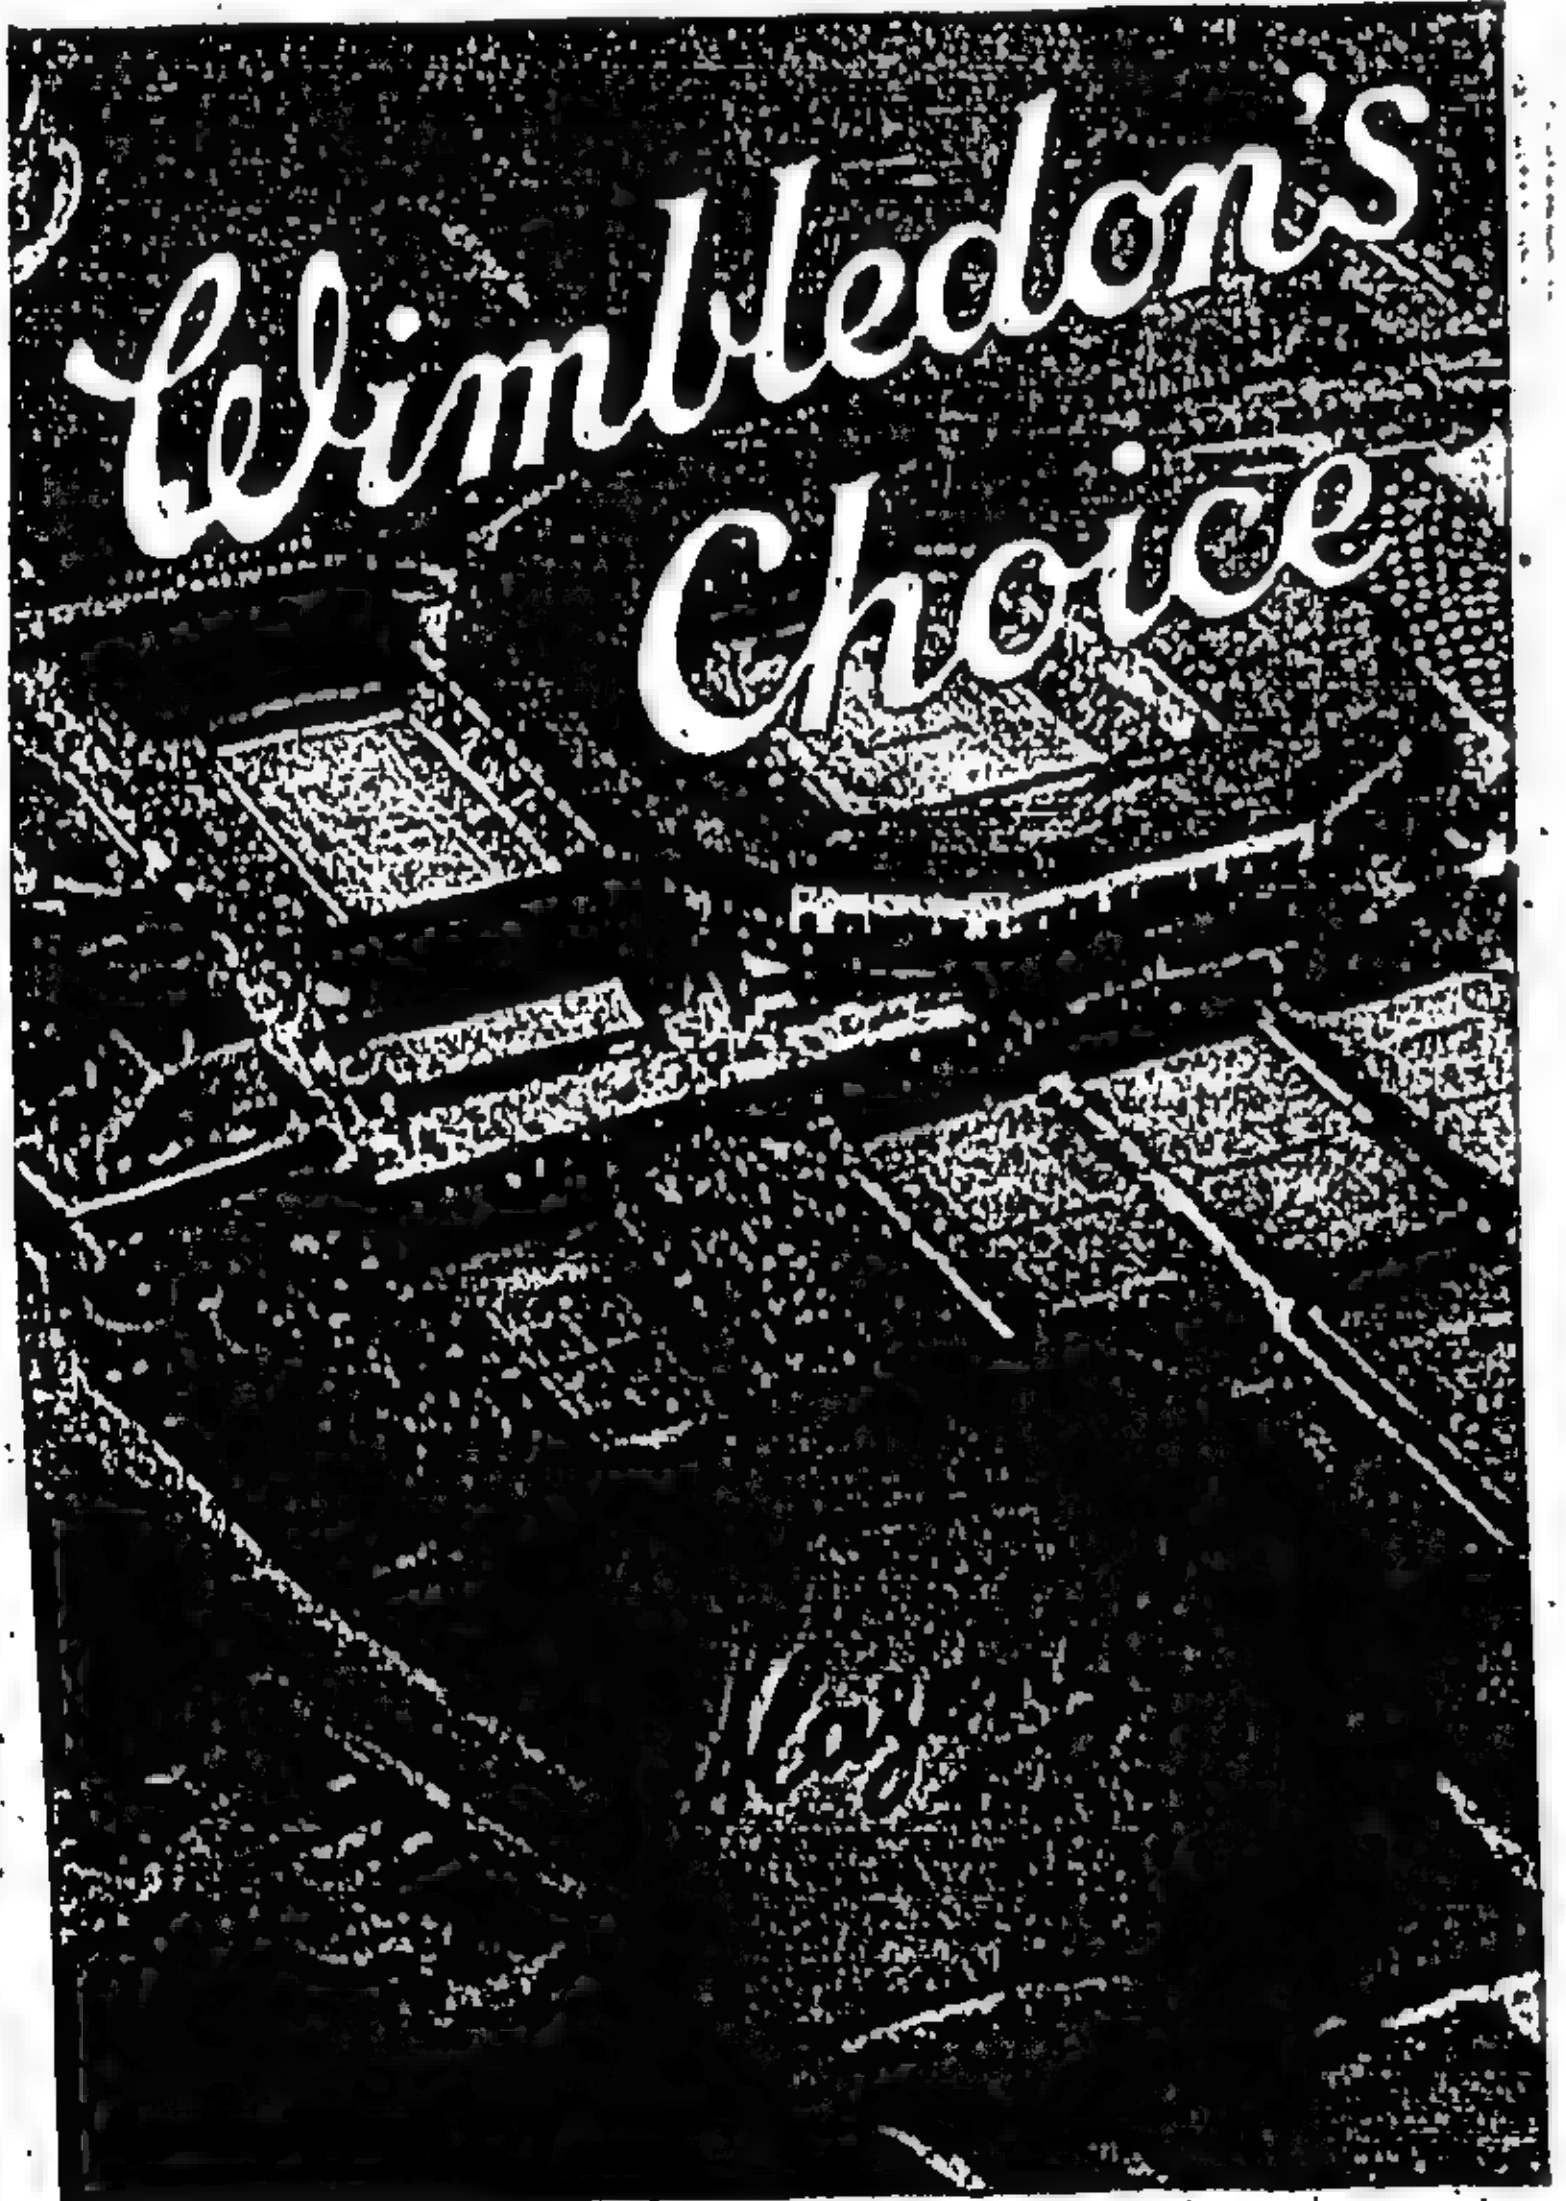

A close game was played at the Hongkong Electric Recreation Club green at North Point yesterday afternoon when Dr. R. A. Basto defeated John Pooler by 21 shots to 18 in the second round of the Open Singles Bowls Championship.

RINKS CHAMPIONSHIP GAME.

In the third round of the Open Rinks Championship, W. Ferris, E. R. Garay, W. Mair and G. C. Moss (skip) defeated R. G. Craig, J. Kompton, W. Greig and J. C. Brown (skip) by 21 shots to 15 on the Civil Service C. C. green yesterday afternoon.

entertainment. The Deutscher Klub carried the day in both matches, E. Dillner beating W. W. Hirst in straight sets, and with H. Schneider overcame Hirst and J. S. Smith.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

Have you noticed that the play of the hand at contract is far superior to the play we were accustomed to at auction? In other words, we hear more of end plays, squeezes, and coups.

Why? Because the bidding at contract gives a lot of information as to location of high cards, while at auction there was probably only one bid to the hand and the enemy did not disclose the location of any of their high cards.

I believe that the beginners spend too much time adding up their half tricks and quarter tricks, etc., to see how many honour cards they hold. Listen to the bidding of the opponents. It plays an important part in the play of the hand later on.

A good example is given to-day in a hand played by Dr. D. D. Tomb, a member of the Youngstown team which recently won the Ohio State contract team-of-four championship, first team outside of Cleveland to win this event. The bidding is according to the one-over-one system. Dr. Tomb and his partner, when the hand was played, however, were using the artificial club bid, but arrived at the same contract.

The Play
Dr. Tomb was sitting in the South. West opened the ace of clubs and then shifted to the eight of diamonds, which Dr. Tomb won with the nine. He now had two good clubs on which he could discard the two losing spades from dummy and cross-ruff the hand out.

However, the fact that West did not double marked East with the ace of hearts, so Dr. Tomb decided to set up dummy's hearts.

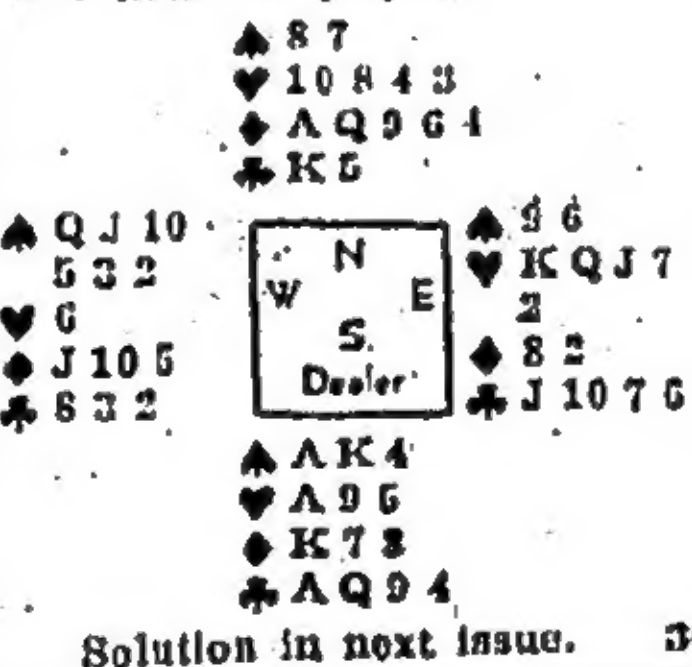

A small diamond was played and won in dummy with the queen. The king of hearts was led and East made it easy, going up with the ace. Declarer ruffed with the jack of diamonds.

A small club was ruffed in dummy with the five of diamonds. A small heart was led and ruffed with the ace of diamonds. The seven of diamonds was led and won in dummy with the king, which picked up the outstanding ten of diamonds from East.

The three good hearts were cashed, South discarding his three losing spades. And it was now unnecessary to take the spade finesse, as the declarer had only the good ace of spades and king and queen of clubs.

Today's Contract Problem

What would your original bid be, holding the South hand? How should the bidding proceed? And if South arrives at a contract of six no trump, and West opens the queen of spades, how should the hand be played?

this but some inner force drove him. "That woman is rotten clear through," he stated clearly. "Of course, if you want to tie yourself up with people like that it's none of my business."

Hunt interrupted. "Look here, Weaver, you mustn't talk to her that way."

He glared. "Oh, mustn't I?" "No. None of this is any fault of hers. A man comes into a party drunk. He makes a scene—he has a fall. I fail to see how Gypsy is to blame."

"Perhaps," said Tom in a tone icy with anger, "perhaps all this is none of your affair."

"Oh, boys, boys!" Gypsy cried on a note of despair. "Stop it. You're both being ridiculous. Tomorrow we'll all laugh at this. We're strung up now. We're not normal." She held out her hand to Hunt. "Good night, and thanks for seeing me through it."

"I hate to..." He took her hand reluctantly, glanced at Tom with irony. "Sorry, old man."

Tom barely nodded. His attitude was that of a host unable to wait until the unwelcome guest has bowed himself out. When the door had closed after him Gypsy said, very low, "Oh, why did you behave like that? So unnecessary."

This, he felt, was the last straw. His own wife defending the other fellow, upbraiding him.

"So that's the way it is! You'll take his part against me. He's a fatuous ass and I can't stand him around any longer. People are talking."

Her eyes blazed. "Who?" "Only to-night a woman said something."

"I thought you were working to-night," she flared at him. She had flung her little velvet wrap aside and stood revealed in all her desirability. Her eyes were feverishly bright with excitement and fatigue. The apricot gown brought out every alluring curve of her charming figure. Never had Tom seen her look so utterly adorable and yet as she stood there, defying him, he felt that it was not love he had for her in his heart—but hatred, almost.

"I was working," he said thickly, angrily. His choler almost choked him. "Who said I wasn't?"

Can this be us, quarrelling so horribly, cruelly, cheaply? thought Gypsy with despair.

"She made one last desperate effort at sanity."

"I'm worn out with this dreadful night," she said reasonably. "We'll talk it over in the morning. Tom, if you don't mind, I can't think."

She put her hands to her throbbing temples. The memory of Derek's distraught face was with her.

He reached out, his fingers gripping one small wrist with a grip of iron.

"We'll talk now and you'll listen," he rasped. "Or I'll walk out of the door this instant and you'll not see me again."

GLORIOUS FOURTH. ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE

The fourth day of July of each year—the Glorious Fourth—is celebrated throughout the world by Americans as the day on which the independence of the American colonies was proclaimed.

The 158th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence occurs to-morrow. In Hongkong, the American community will fittingly celebrate the occasion by a Reception at the American Club.

Owing to the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jenkins this evening, the duties of receiving the guests will devolve upon Mr. L. H. Gourley, Acting Consul General, Mr. J. A. Shaw, Chairman of the Fourth of July Committee and Mr. Charles Benson, Chairman of the American Club.

The Reception will be held from

The Aftermath of Maternity

The joy of motherhood, great as it may be, is not of itself sufficient to restore strength and vitality to a system which has become weakened by the recent great strain imposed upon it, and though nature decreed that motherhood should entail no serious consequences, the artificial modes of modern life have increased the possibility of impairment of health.

At this time more than at any other, it is necessary for the mother's blood to be rich, pure and plentiful, thereby strengthening the nervous system and ensuring for the life she has brought into the world the maximum chance for health and happiness.

While mothers as well as those who are anticipating the arrival of a little one will build up their blood and nerves by means of a reliable tonic of which there is none better known for the purpose than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, renowned for more than fifty years.

By their tonic action whereby new, rich, red blood is created at every dose, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved unique in their ability to recruit failing strength, increase vitality, build up the blood and nerves, and restore complete health and vigour. To the nursing mother they are invaluable.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the world famous blood and nerve tonic, are equally good for men as for women, and they can also be given, with perfect safety, to run-down, pale, anæmic children. Obtainable from chemists everywhere.

CHINA'S LATEST TARIFFS

MOST DUTIES SHOW AN INCREASE

NEW SCHEDULE

Shanghai, July 3.
The new schedules for the Chinese Customs import tariff have been issued. They are effective as from July 1.

The tariff generally shows a reduction in the import duties upon nearly all ranges and classes of cotton goods, but the revision in most of the other categories is in an upward direction.

The tax on gasoline and kerosene bears one of the heaviest fresh imposts, the increase being about twenty-five per cent.

Jams and jellies go from thirty per cent. to thirty-five per cent., meat extracts from twenty-five to thirty per cent., coffee, chocolate and tea, bacon and canned goods generally move up from thirty per cent. to thirty-five per cent. ad valorem.

Wireless apparatus of all kinds is also subject to a boost, the ad valorem duty being increased from twelve and a half per cent. to fifteen.

LUXURY GOODS.

Electric cookers, fans, etc. are increased from 20 to 25 per cent. ad valorem, toys and games from thirty to 35 per cent. Jewellery and ornaments from 25 to 30 per cent. including pearls, both real and artificial.

Perfumery and cosmetics go up by five per cent.
These are the more popular items in a list enumerating no fewer than 672 categories of goods.—Reuter.

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia is due here from Shanghai at 3 p.m. to-morrow.

MACDONALD AND ROOSEVELT

LIKELY TO MEET AND TALK

BAD FEELING OVER NAVAL MATTERS

London, July 3.
Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, says the "Daily Herald," is thinking of meeting President Roosevelt and exchanging views informally on world problems.

It was indicated last night that the Premier, during his holiday in America, hopes to be able to arrange for a meeting.

No plans have been made, but it is felt that a friendly talk is needed to remove the bad impression created in the United States by the British Admiralty memorandum. It is stated that the Japanese Naval Officers' Memorandum suggests that the Japanese attitude is hardening.

The Prime Minister, who to-day arrived at Lonsdalemouth, where he will spend the first part of his long holiday, will sail for Canada aboard the C.P.R. liner, Duchess of Richmond, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Isabel, leaving Liverpool on July 20.—Reuter and British Wireless.

The French sloop Savorgnan de Brazza arrives in Hongkong from Swatow to-morrow and will remain in port until Tuesday next.

Victim of a motor accident, Lui Sie entered the Kowloon Hospital yesterday. He suffered injuries of a minor nature, caused through being knocked down in Tai Po Road by a car.

SHANGHAI HEAT WAVE VICTIM

DEATH OF MR. A. MCCLURE

HEAD OF FIRM OF AUDITORS

Shanghai, July 3.
The death occurred early this morning from heat stroke of Mr. Alexander McClure, senior partner in the firm of Seth, Mancell and McClure, the well-known Shanghai accountants.

The victim, who hailed from Glasgow, had been a resident of Shanghai since 1918.

He suffered from an attack of heat stroke last year, and it may be recalled that a few weeks ago he was held up in his office by armed robbers, who stole $12,000 and got clear away.

Mr. McClure was only 46 years of age and he leaves a widow and a young son, both of whom are in Shanghai.—Reuter.
